KOELN FINDS NEW GRAFT IN WATER METER ACCOUNTS

Bills Withheld and Collected From Consumers at Discount, Collector Says.

TOTAL MORE THAN $300

"Gross Irregularities" Are to Be Laid Before the Circuit Attorney.

Collector Koeln told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he had discovered new graft in the water rates office, in the form of gross irregularities in the meter accounts, and that he would lay the evidence gathered in a three-day investigation before Circuit Attorney Harvey during the afternoon. Koeln said that the "mountain of irregularities" thus far discovered was in excess of $300, and that it would require several months' more work to complete the investigation of the accounts between Sept. 1, 1914, and Sept. 1, 1915.

Koeln said he found that the records in the meter ledgers had been falsified in order to conceal irregularities which made it possible to defraud the city. The investigation showed, he said, that when the 700 bills were made out to meter consumers, some of them had been withheld from the Collector of Water Rates, who therefore had no record of the account. Some person or persons responsible for withholding the bills from the Collector would then go to the consumers whose bills had been withheld and collect and retain the money, sometimes making unreasonable discounts to the consumer to induce him to pay his bill.

Offered 25 Per Cent Discount. In one instance, according to Koeln, an employee of the water rates office went to a consumer on Locust street and told him that he could give him a better discount than he could get from the city. The city's discount was 10 per cent, while the employee offered a 35 per cent discount on the consumer's bill, which was for $70. Koeln said he asked the consumer if he thought the city could afford to make any such discount, and the consumer said he was not interested in what the city could or could not do, but wanted to get his water at the cheapest possible price.

The false entries in the meter records, according to Koeln, appeared to be in the same handwriting. Koeln said that some of the work was very bungling, as some entries showed that bills had been paid on Sundays, when the Collector's office was closed.

Koeln said he wished to keep the Circuit Attorney informed of every step of his investigation, and for that reason would lay the results of the first three days' investigation before Harvey this afternoon. The Water Rates office, in which the irregularities were found, was formerly under control of Claude B. Burton, recently dismissed from service on account of the water meter affairs found to exist in his office.

Officials Shift Blame for Water Office Defects. An official controversy is rapidly developing at the city hall, with Water Commissioner Wall and Comptroller Player as the contending principals, over the question of who is responsible for the conditions in the water rates office, which made possible the graft which is constantly being exposed there.

A letter written more than a year ago by Wall to Director of Public Utilities Hooke, his official superior, which was published in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, pointed out the lack of proper check on receipts, and the possibilities for graft, in very much the manner in which grafting has lately been shown to have been done there.

Reps Buried Efforts. Player declares, however, that he has been trying for years past to install a new system in the water rates office, and that his efforts have been thwarted by Claude E. Burton, lately deposed from the position of Assessor of Water Rates, and by Wall, who was Burton's superior officer. He says that all the faults pointed out in Wall's letter of October, 1914, had long before been pointed out by him, and that he had made repeated efforts to install a better system, failing each time because, as he said, he could not obtain the cooperation of Burton and Wall.

July 17, last, Player wrote Director Hooke a letter, complaining that Wall and Burton were continually raising obstacles to this reorganization work. Player wrote: "There would be no difficulty at all were it not for the infernal—I may say damnable—patronage feature, which has proven a blight on so many efforts to do the right thing in the right way."

When asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter to explain his reference to patronage, Player said that the Water Department was "job-ridden," and that Wall had shown unwillingness to have anyone engaged in revising the water rates system, whom he, Wall, could not personally select. He said the late Peter White, expert municipal accountant, who was set at the task by Comptroller Tausig, under the Kreismann administration, found constant obstacles placed in his way.

Wall today denied that either he or, to his knowledge, Burton, had thrown obstacles in Player's way, and said he was not aware that any matter of patronage had entered into the reorganization plan. He said the recommendation made in his letter of a year ago, to the effect that more men were needed for the work of inspection and preparing bills, was based on Burton's report of conditions.

Then we may know exactly where the responsibility lies."

"The foreign policy of the Government does not have our confidence; moreover we consider it fatal for the country," said Venizelos. "In recent days we have felt more profoundly still the pain of seeing our countrymen by the aid of an enemy, which will turn on us after having crushed Serbia."

"We are saddened by the thought that tomorrow we shall be alone, without friends or allies, in the face of a formidable enemy."

Ex-Premier Venizelos said, however, that he did not mean to throw upon the King responsibility for the present situation in Greece. He blamed those who had failed to advise his majesty as they ought and said the crown could not refuse to recognize the vote of confidence accorded by the Chamber of Deputies to the preceding Cabinet.

M. Gounaris, Minister of the Interior, interrupting, said he thought the policy of M. Venizelos would lead the country to ruin and to take opposition against the Central Powers which would be disastrous for Greece and Serbia.

M. Theodoris, Minister of Communications, said that Venizelos last February would have led the Greek fleet and army to complete ruin. The developments which had followed justified the opinion, the Minister contended, that armed neutrality had saved Greece from catastrophe and that if the country had not maintained neutrality it would have been lost without saving Serbia.

"War inevitable tomorrow," assuming his speech, Venizelos apologized for his policy of last February and discussed the benefits which Greece might have realized if her neutrality had not been maintained. Concluding he said:

"Your policy has rendered our national life impossible and in serving involuntarily a German political group we are exposed to the danger of aiding Bulgarian aspirations and the growth of Turkish power. Why not take part today in a war which tomorrow will be inevitable?"

M. Venizelos terminated his address in urging the Government not to let pass an occasion which is presented to the people only once in a thousand years. His speech was frequently applauded.

The Patria, the organ of the Venizelists party, prior to the debate, addressed a supreme appeal to the Government to drop its neutrality and seize the opportunity to put an end to what it termed the Bulgarian terror, arguing that, as in 1913, the central Powers were using Bulgaria as a diplomatic tool against Serbia and Greece and that aggression for Bulgaria meant ruin for Greece.

London Does Not Expect Venizelos to Return to Power.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The all-night meeting of the Greek Chamber, the new attack of former Premier Venizelos on the policy of the Government and his criticism of King Constantine's interference with "constitutional liberties" of the Greek people are regarded here as a political crisis which, for the time being, has overshadowed the military situation in the Balkans. According to latest information from Athens the King is expected to continue the Zaimis Cabinet and dissolve Parliament rather than accept the other alternative of permitting M. Venizelos to return to power.

King Constantine is said to be in thorough sympathy with the conduct before the Chamber of Gen. Yanakakis, War Minister, whose remarks brought on the crisis, and who have demonstrated appreciation of the Minister's force by supporting him to the end.

The promised assistance for the Servians is materializing, according to advices from Saloniki, and two divisions of British troops (40,000 men) have joined the French and other units are following. Official reports from Paris show minor engagements are in progress between the French and Bulgarians.

GERMANS ADVANCE ON SERVIAN FRONT

BERLIN, Nov. 5, by wireless to Sayville.—Advances all along the line by the German forces invading Serbia are announced in today's official statement by Army Headquarters. The capture of the Servians is reported.

The statement says: "In the Morava Valley, heights near Arele were captured."

"South of Cacak a ridge of the Jelic range was crossed."

"On both sides of the mountainous district of Kotelnik our troops defeated the enemy and during the pursuit they reached the northern bank of the Western Collette-Morava on both sides of Kraljevo. They took 1000 Servians prisoners."

"To the east of Grubica, the army of Gen. von Gallwitz has thrown the enemy back across the Godadica-Santa Rovaas line."

"The heights south of Luvovir were stormed and in the Morava Valley we took Kuprija, Tresevin and Paracim. Fifteen hundred prisoners were captured."

Special dispatches from the Servian front dated Tuesday report signs of demoralization among the Servian troops, asserting that deserters from the army are increasing daily. Here, before the deserters have been for the most part Macedonians, but they now include the regular line troops, all poorly fed and clothed.

Servian resistance, according to these advices, is weakening and the army seems to be approaching a breakdown. The Germans expected heavy fighting around Kragujevac because of the strongly built fortifications and the location there of arms and ammunition factories and extensive military stores.

But the Servians offered only rear guard actions in defense of the strong-fort. Most of the military supplies were destroyed by the Servians before their evacuation of the fortress.

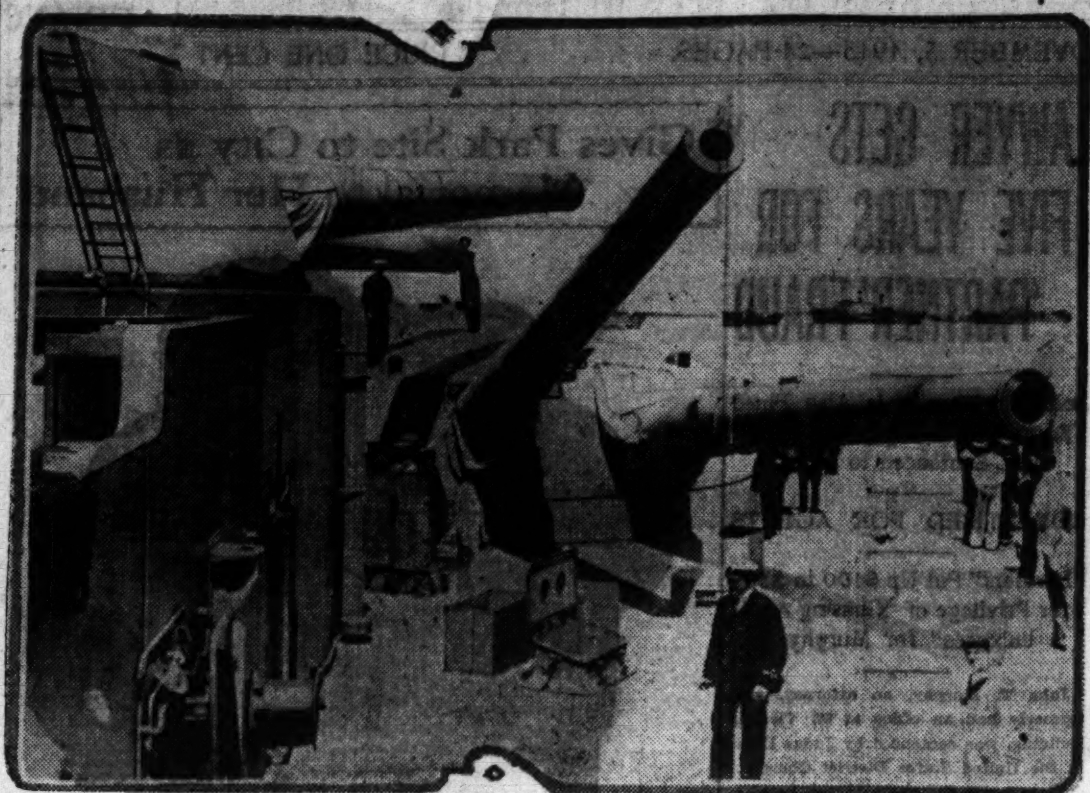

The City Council made a formal surrender of the city, which was a grateful surprise to the Germans, this having occurred nowhere else.

The Servians, the reports say, are retreating southward and westward and it is uncertain whether they are trying to reach Montenegro or Albania.

German Recapture French Which French Took Oct. 24.

counter attack by the French against positions captured by the Germans to the north of Massiges failed with heavy losses to the attacking force.

Capture of three French officers and 50 men, together with eight machine guns and 12 small mine throwers, is reported. The statement adds:

"Field Marshal French said in an official report:

"It can be deduced from the casualty lists of seven German battalions, which participated in the Loos battle, that their losses were 80 per cent of their effective." This statement is pure invention."

"In spite of extraordinary losses, the Russians have repeated their fruitless attacks between Lakes Swanton and Ilsen and near Gateni," the War Office also announced.

"Gen. von Lindegen's troops threw the Russians northwest of Chortorky into their former positions after a temporary advance by the enemy. North of Komar two Russian counter attacks failed. East of Rudika the Germans have advanced."

"An attack by Gen. Count von Bothmer's forces against the Russians' defense of a part of Sienikowce was successful. Two thousand more Russians were captured."

BULGARS 2 HOURS' MARCH FROM NISH

Invaders Reported Violently to Have Bombarded the Advanced Forts.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Bulgarian artillery violently bombarded advanced forts of Nish on the Nishava River Wednesday, says a Saloniki dispatch to the Matin, filed yesterday.

They captured Nish-Kavaja, a small town, two hours march northeast of Nish.

Rumanian Order Three Russian Ships Interdicted.

BERLIN, Nov. 5, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—"The Rumanian Government has ordered the disarmament and internment of two Russian torpedo boats and an armed steamship which are in Rumanian waters at Turn-Severin, on the Danube" (just beyond the Hungarian border), says the Overseas News Agency.

"Rumanian newspapers publish a semi-official statement that the nation will not intervene in the war unless its vital interests are menaced and that the country is under obligations, in a military sense, neither to Serbia nor any other nation. The general opinion is that this statement is proof that Rumania has declined the new proposals made by the entente Powers on Oct. 28."

French Air Squadrons Bombard German Gas Plant.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The War Office announcement today says that in Alsace a French aviation squadron has flown over Dornach and bombarded certain buildings used by the Germans for the manufacture of suffocating gases.

Austrians Begin New Movement to Cut Off Servian Retreat.

BERLIN, Nov. 5, by wireless to Puckerton, N. J.—A new movement to cut off the retreat of the Servian army is reported by the Overseas News Agency. The Austrians are said to have begun an attack along the western border of Montenegro, in which country the Servian forces are expected to seek refuge.

Bryan Opposes the President's Defense Program

fair to assume that the European rulers who are involved in the present war thought that they were contributing toward the maintenance of peace when they were making elaborate preparations for defense." It is inevitable leads into difficulties.

"The spirit that makes the individual carry a revolver and whoever carries a revolver except for defense—leads him not only to use it on slight provocation, but to use it against those who provoke trouble."

"Speak softly, but carry a big stick" is one of the delusive maxims employed by those who put their faith in force. There are two answers to it—first the man who speaks softly has not the disposition to carry a club, and if a man with a soft voice is persuaded to carry a club his voice changes as soon as he begins to rely upon the club.

"If there is any truth in our religion, a nation must win respect as an individual does, not by carrying arms but by an upright, honorable course that invites confidence and inspires good will. This nation has won its position in the world without resorting to the habit of totting a pistol or carrying a club. Why reverse our policy at this time? The President himself admits that there is no reason for a change. He says:

"The country is not threatened from any quarter. She stands in friendly relations with all the world. Her resources and her self-respect and capacity to care for her own citizens and rights are well known. And to make the statement more emphatic, he adds: 'There is no fear among us.'

"If we're not threatened by any nation, if our relations with all nations are friendly, if everybody knows that we're able to defend ourselves if necessary and if there is no fear among us, why is this time chosen to revolutionize our national theories and to exchange our policy for the policy of Europe?"

Would Set Example. "Why abandon the hope that we have so long entertained of setting an example to Europe? Why encourage the nations of Europe in her fatal folly by imitating them? Why impose upon the Western Hemisphere a policy so disastrous? May we not expect all Latin America to be stimulated to preparation if we enter upon a new era of preparation? And will not such a policy make conflicts between these republics more probable? We shall do infinite harm to the relations of nations as well as to ourselves if we are drawn into this policy, which provokes war by a preparation which is impossible without a large increase in taxation and the arousing of a military system which sets up false standards of honor."

"We are now spending more than $200,000,000 a year on preparedness—10 times as much as we are spending on agriculture—and I feel sure that the taxpayers are not in favor of increasing this sum at this time when a change is not only unnecessary but a menace to our national ideals."

"There has not been a time in 50 years when there was less reason to add to the expenses of the army and navy, for we are not only without an enemy, but our preparation is increasing relatively as other nations exhaust themselves. And there never was a time in our whole history when our duty to the world more imperatively demanded self-restraint and the counsels of peace."

"I hope the President will not be deceived by the atmosphere of the Manhattan Club. That is the one place in the United States where the mammoth-worshipping portion of the Democratic party meets to exchange compliments—there is no group farther removed from the continent than the masses whether you measure that sentiment by economical, social or religious standards."

SHEDD NEW CHAIRMAN OF ROCK ISLAND DIRECTORS

Choice of Head of Marshall Field & Co. Due to Desire to Make Chicago Road's Financial Center.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The new board of directors of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. today elected John G. Shedd chairman of the board and Charles Nathan L. Amster chairman of the executive committee.

The resignations from the board of H. U. Mudge, who is to become president of the Denver & Rio Grande, and W. H. Moore were accepted and B. F. Carry, Chicago, and Francis L. Leland, New York, were elected to the respective vacancies.

The following were chosen members of the Executive Committee: Nathaniel French, N. L. Amster, John R. Morron, Charles G. Dawes, Edmund D. Hulbert, Shedd and Charles Hayden. The election of a president was deferred.

Shedd, head of Marshall Field & Co., is one of Chicago's most prominent business men and his selection is said to reflect the desire of Amster, who, at the recent stockholders' committee meeting had proxy control of the property, to make Chicago the financial as well as the operating headquarters of the road.

Asks Viviano Jury for Disapproval of Feud Murders

April 17 last, just after learning that Lupo had killed Viviano's cousin and brother-in-law, "Little" Pietro spoke of this murdered relative throughout his testimony as "my brother."

The prisoner's recital was dramatic in the extreme. He rose from the witness chair and enacted in pantomime scenes when he met Lupo just after the killing of the other Viviano, showing how, as he said, Lupo threatened his life, and how he shot and killed Lupo.

Viviano said that, on the morning of the killing, his "brother" Pietro told him of having received a "Black Hand" letter, and said that he was going to see Lupo and pacify him. Viviano said that his "brother" had received many threatening communications.

The prisoner said that he had met Lupo eight days before the killing, and that Lupo had "looked" at him as if he meant to kill him. He illustrated this look by grimaces. He then told of not telling, when in the Viviano spaghetti factory, that his "brothers" had gone out, and of seeing a crowd at Seventh and Middle streets, a block north of the factory, and hearing that his "brother" Pietro had been shot.

He said he ran and got a revolver from the factory watchman, and that as he got to Middle street he saw the body of his "brother" being carried down the steps. He thought then that Lupo had killed another of the family as well as "You assassin," he said he shouted at Lupo, "you killed my brothers."

"Yes," he said Lupo replied, "and I kill you, too."

"Then," said the witness, "I shoot him."

TEUTONS MAKING SLOW PROGRESS IN MORAVA VALLEY

Advance but 15 Miles in Four Weeks in Main Effort to Unite With Bulgarians.

SALONIKI, Nov. 5.—French headquarters admits that Austro-German cavalry has effected a junction with the Bulgarians in the Bell Jovan region near Negotin, but asserts the country in this district is so difficult that it is doubtful whether the union of forces will serve any practical end. Negotia is on the Danube at a point where only the river separates Rumanian territory from the frontiers of Bulgaria and Serbia. An officer of the Servian general staff, discussing the situation, said today:

"The main Austro-German effort to get in touch with the Bulgarians is proceeding very slowly and with exceedingly heavy losses on the Morava valley, through which Turks invaded Hungary. Gen. Terzich's division, composed of natives of the Morava valley, is offering a desperate resistance. Four attacks were required to take Semendria, which had to be stormed by street fighting, every house being a fortress. Zagreb cost three successive charges, which ended in hand-to-hand struggles. After 13 days the Austro-Germans arrived before Malakresna, on which they raised 10,000 shells and stormed only after finding the location of the Servian batteries which covered it. Seeking to retire, the invaders were charged by cavalry and fled four miles before they could reorganize their shattered ranks to resume the attack."

"On the 19th the Austro-German advance up the Morava valley had reached only the Lubelo bridge on the Puchavevaya line. The next day the line extended as far as Azania. Palanka fell on the 21st. The total advance in this section in four weeks was 15 miles, scarcely a third of the distance to Paracim, where a junction with the Bulgarians must be effected by way of the Ura valley. Meanwhile, the Bulgarians in this section advanced only as far as the line of Zalcia-Negotin Railway. The Servian situation is serious, but we have no other intention than to fight until the last."

WOMAN HURRYING TO GET TO WORK ON TIME HIT BY TRAIN

Factory Employee Failed to See Approaching Engine; Jaw and Nose Fractured.

Mrs. Cora Market, 44 years old, of 2133 Division street, was in such a hurry to get to work on time at the factory of the Republic Metal and Rubber Co., Main and Mount streets, that she failed to notice an approaching passenger train and was struck by it at Hudson street near the factory, at 7:30 a. m. today, and seriously injured.

Mrs. Market's jaw and nose were fractured and she sustained internal injuries. She was taken to the city hospital, where physicians said her condition is critical.

Charles Hodges, 206 North Tenth street, who witnessed the accident, told the police he saw Mrs. Market approach the railroad tracks at a half-run. She did not seem to hear the train.

OIL, POULTRY AND WHEAT MIXED IN A FREIGHT WRECK

Nearly 4000 Chickens Killed When Missouri Pacific Train Is Derailed at Eureka.

Many chickens were killed and the contents of 15 cars of oil were scattered over the railroad right of way when a Missouri Pacific freight train bound for St. Louis was derailed and wrecked at Eureka, St. Louis County, at 6 a. m. today.

Five tank cars, two poultry cars, two wheat cars and two empties were piled together. The poultry cars contained about 4000 chickens. Most of these died in the wreck. Members of the crew escaped injury.

After the wreck the Missouri Pacific passenger trains were routed into St. Louis over the Frisco tracks.

BUDAPEST IS EUROPE'S GAYEST CAPITAL; CAFES DRAW MANY OFFICERS

Soldiers Unmolested in Pursuit of Amusement; Night Life Is Filled With Clinking Glasses and Laughter of Men and Women.

By Karl H. von Wiegand.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World. (Copyright 1915, by Press Pub. Co.) BUDAPEST, via Amsterdam, Nov. 5.—

The sixteenth month of the war finds Budapest, capital of the Kingdom of Hungary, not only the gayest capital, but the gayest city in Europe. With London, Berlin, the social life of Paris, and the pleasure-loving Vienna's vivaciousness somewhat tinged with sadness, Budapest alone has an aspect of gaiety.

Here in the hours when the lid is on in London, Paris and Berlin, and even in Vienna, there is song and dance, the clink of glasses, the sparkle of wine and the laughter of women.

The theaters, opera houses, cabarets and variety shows are crowded nightly. "Lari Fedak, Budapest's most famous actress and footlight idol, told me the theaters never have had a more successful season."

Wide Open All Night. The Hungarian capital is wide awake all night. The brilliantly lighted cafes or coffee houses, as they are called here, are open all the 24 hours, an amusement taken from one room to another while they are being cleaned. It is in the coffee houses where men like Molnar, whom I saw at one of the fables, write their dramas and compose their music.

Berlin's night life has disappeared since the war, but not so with Budapest. With Miksa Vrody, writer of the "Sybil," "The Marching Men" and other operatic librettos, and Albert Salm, composer of "The Girl on the Film," as guides, Karl Kitchen of the New York World and myself made a tour of the city. We visited six large establishments and a number of smaller ones.

At the Casino de Paris, rebratized the Casino Mulatto, which is attached to the Folies Caprice, 34 vaudeville numbers were given after midnight, the entertainers as a rule being in abbreviated skirts or gauzy drapery. After dancing, the performers joined the audience and helped to reduce the supplies of wine.

At the conclusion of the stage program they began dancing on the floor. In Berlin, officers and soldiers have been barred from such places where there was too much feminine attractiveness. The authorities do not consider this best for the Fatherland's defender. But here there were numerous German officers in uniform, never for a moment losing their stiff dignity.

Entertainment for Four, $2.35. There were "artists" from Constantinople, Saloniki, Bucharest, Warsaw and Petrograd. One told how she had to sell her diamonds and furs to escape from Riga. At the next table sat an English girl of remarkable beauty, with her friend, a Hungarian Count. The bill for the four of us in this place for two hours was $2.35, including wine.

At the winter garden, 42 numbers were given on the stage. At 5 o'clock in the morning those who remained retired to the basement for breakfast, for which we found the bill was higher than for our wine. Although everything was wide open, with absolutely no restrictions, it is noteworthy that I saw only one intoxicated person in the entire night.

BUDAPEST IS EUROPE'S GAYEST CAPITAL; CAFES DRAW MANY OFFICERS

Soldiers Unmolested in Pursuit of Amusement; Night Life Is Filled With Clinking Glasses and Laughter of Men and Women.

By Karl H. von Wiegand.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World. (Copyright 1915, by Press Pub. Co.) BUDAPEST, via Amsterdam, Nov. 5.—

The sixteenth month of the war finds Budapest, capital of the Kingdom of Hungary, not only the gayest capital, but the gayest city in Europe. With London, Berlin, the social life of Paris, and the pleasure-loving Vienna's vivaciousness somewhat tinged with sadness, Budapest alone has an aspect of gaiety.

Here in the hours when the lid is on in London, Paris and Berlin, and even in Vienna, there is song and dance, the clink of glasses, the sparkle of wine and the laughter of women.

The theaters, opera houses, cabarets and variety shows are crowded nightly. "Lari Fedak, Budapest's most famous actress and footlight idol, told me the theaters never have had a more successful season."

Wide Open All Night. The Hungarian capital is wide awake all night. The brilliantly lighted cafes or coffee houses, as they are called here, are open all the 24 hours, an amusement taken from one room to another while they are being cleaned. It is in the coffee houses where men like Molnar, whom I saw at one of the fables, write their dramas and compose their music.

President Calls on Nation to Support Defense Program

It is necessary to avow them again. We believe in political liberty and founded our great government to obtain it, the liberty of men and of peoples—not men to choose their own lives and of peoples to choose their own allegiance.

But ambition also, all the world has knowledge of. It is not only to be free and prosperous ourselves, but also to be the friend and thoughtful partisan of those who are free or who desire freedom the world over. If we have had aggressive purposes and covetous ambitions, they were the fruit of our thoughtless youth as a nation and we have put them aside. We shall, I confidently believe, never again take another foot of territory by conquest. We shall never in any circumstances seek to make an independent people subject to our dominion, because we believe, we passionately believe, in the right of every people to choose their own allegiance and be free of masters altogether.

For ourselves we wish nothing but full liberty of self-determination; and with ourselves in this great matter we associate all the people of our hemisphere. We wish not only for the United States but for them the fullest freedom of independent growth and of union, for we know that the same aspirations are everywhere being worked out, under diverse conditions but with the same impulse and ultimate object.

All this is very clear to us and will, I confidently predict, become more and more clear to the whole world as the great processes of the future unfold themselves. It is with a full consciousness of such principles and such ambitions that we are asking ourselves at the present time what our duty is with regard to the armed forces of the nation. Within a year we have witnessed what we did not believe possible, a great European conflict involving many of the greatest nations of the world. The influences of a great war are everywhere in the air. All Europe is engaged. Europe everywhere speaks out with a loud and imperious voice in a domestic struggle of Germany and France on the one hand and England and the other men are asking one another what our own force is, how far we are prepared to maintain ourselves against any interference with our national action or development.

Making sure of our security. In no man's mind, I am sure, is there even raised the question of the willful use of force on our part against any nation or any people. No matter what military or naval force the United States might develop, statements throughout the world might rest assured that we were gathering that force, not for attack in any quarter, not for aggression of any kind, not for the satisfaction of any political or international ambition, but merely to make sure of our own security. We have it in mind to be prepared for war, but only for defense and with the thought constantly in our minds that the principles we hold most dear can be achieved by the slow process of history only in the kindly and wholesome atmosphere of peace, and not by the use of hostile force. The mission of America in the world is essentially a mission of peace and good will among men. She has become the home and asylum of men of all creeds and races. Within her hospitable borders they have found homes and congenial associations and freedom and a wide and cordial welcome, and they have become part of the home and show and spirit of America itself. America has been made up out of the nations of the world and is the friend of the nations of the world.

And we know that we can do this in a way that will be itself an illustration of the American spirit. In accordance with our American traditions we want and shall work for only an army adequate to the constant and legitimate uses of times of international peace. But we do want to feel that there is a great body of citizens who have received at least the most rudimentary and necessary forms of military training; that they will be ready to form themselves into a fighting force at the call of the nation; and that the nation has the munitions and supplies with which to equip them without delay should it be necessary to call them into action. We wish to supply them with the training they need, and we think we can do so without calling them at any time too long away from their civilian pursuits.

Outlines Army Plans. "It is with this idea, with this conception, in mind that the plans have been made which it will be my privilege to lay before the Congress at its next session. That plan calls for only such an increase in the regular army of the United States as experience has proved to be required for the performance of the necessary duties of the army in the Philippines, in Hawaii, in Porto Rico, upon the borders of the United States, as the coast, fortifications, and the military posts of the interior. For the rest, it calls for the training within the next three years of a force of 400,000 citizen soldiers to be raised in annual contingents of 125,000, who would be asked to enlist for three years with the colors and three years on furlough, but who during their three years of enlistment with the colors would not be organized as a standing force, but would be expected merely to undergo intensive training for a very brief period of each year. Their training would take place in immediate association with the organized units of the regular army. It would have no touch of the amateur about it, neither would it exact of the volunteers more than they could give in any one year from their civilian pursuits.

And some of this would be done in such a way as in the slightest degree to supersede or subordinate our present serviceable and efficient National Guard. On the contrary, the National Guard instrumentality by which training would be given the citizens who enlisted under the new conditions, and I should hope and expect that the legislation by which all this would be accomplished would put the National Guard itself upon a better and more permanent footing than it has ever been before, giving it not only the recognition which it deserves, but a more definite support from the national Government and a more definite connection with the military organization of the nation.

"What we all wish to accomplish is that the forces of the nation should indeed be part of the nation and not a separate professional force, and the chief cost of the system would not be in the enlistment or in the training of the men, but in the providing of ample equipment in case it should be necessary to call all forces into the field. Would Hasten Naval Program. "Moreover, it has been American policy time out of mind to look to the navy as the first and chief line of defense. The navy of the United States is already a very great and efficient force. Not rapidly, but slowly, with careful attention, our naval force has been developed until the navy of the United States stands recognized as one of the most efficient and notable of the modern times. All that is needed in order to bring it to a point of extraordinary force and efficiency as compared with the other navies of the world is that we should hasten our pace in the policy we have long been pursuing, and that chief of all we should have a definite policy of development, not made from year to year, but looking well into the future and planning for a definite consummation.

"We can and should profit in all that we do by the experience and example that have been made obvious to us by the military and naval events of the actual present. It is not merely a matter of building battleships and cruisers and submarines, but also a matter of making sure that we shall have the adequate equipment of men and munitions and supplies for the vessels we build and intend to build. Part of our problem is the problem of what I may call the mobilization of the resources of the nation at the proper time if it should ever be necessary to mobilize them for national defense. We shall study efficiency and adequate equipment as carefully as we shall study the number and size of our ships, and I believe that the plans already in part made public by the Navy Department are plans which the whole nation can approve with rational enthusiasm.

"No thoughtful man feels any panic in this matter. The country is not threatened from any quarter. She stands in friendly relations with all the world. Her resources are known and her self-respect and her capacity to care for her own defense and her own rights. There is no fear amongst us under the new-world conditions we have become thoughtful of the things which all reasonable men consider necessary for security and self-defense on the part of every nation confronted with the great enterprise of human liberty and independence. That is all.

"Is the plan we propose sane and reasonable and suited to the needs of the hour? Does it not conform to the ancient traditions of America? Has any better plan been proposed than this, given that we now place before the country? Is it there in an order of opinion. It represents the best professional and common judgment of the country. But I am not so much interested in programs as I am in education. At every point the good faith and honor of the country. It is not difficult with me in this vital matter. I shall not waste time in clear how far and in what way they are interested in making the permanent interests of the country safe against dis-

support of the country; of the rank and file of America, of men of all shades of political opinion. For my position in this important matter is different from that of the private individual who is free to speak his own thoughts and to risk his own opinions in this matter. We are here dealing with things that are vital to the life of America itself. In doing this I have tried to put my heart of all personal and selfish motives. For this reason, I speak as the trustee and guardian of a nation's rights, charged with the duty of speaking for that nation in matters involving her sovereignty—a nation too big and generous to be exacting and yet courageous enough to defend its rights and the liberties of its people wherever assailed or invaded. I would not feel that I was discharging a solemn obligation if I was the country were I not to speak in terms of the deepest solemnity of the urgency and necessity of preparing ourselves to guard and protect the rights and privileges of our people, our sacred heritage of the fathers who struggled to make us an independent nation.

"The only thing within our borders that has given us grave concern in recent months has been that voices have been raised in America professing to be the voices of Americans which were not indeed in truth Americans, but which spoke alien sympathies, which came from men who loved other countries better than they loved America, men who were partisans of other causes than that of America and had forgotten that of America and only allegiance was to the government under which they live. These voices have not been many, but they have been very loud and very clamorous. They have proceeded from a few who were bitter and who were grievously misled.

"America has not opened its doors to vain to men and women out of other nations. The vast majority of those who have come to take advantage of her hospitality have united their spirits with hers as well as their fortunes. These men who speak alien sympathies are not their spokesmen, but are the spokesmen of small groups whom it is high time that the nation should call to a reckoning. The chief thing necessary in America in order that she should let all the world know that she is prepared to maintain her own great position is that the real voice of the nation should sound forth unmistakably and in majestic volume, in the deep union of a common, unshattering national feeling. I do not doubt that upon the first occasion, upon the first opportunity,

upon the first definite challenge, that voice will speak forth in tones which no man can doubt and with commands which no man dare gainsay or resist. "May I not say, while I am speaking of this, that there is another danger that we should guard against? We should refrain not only manifestations of racial feeling here in America where there should be none, but also every manifestation of religious and sectarian antagonism. It does not become Americans that within her borders, where every man is free to follow the dictates of his conscience and worship God as he pleases, men should raise the cry of church against church. To do that is to strike at the very spirit and heart of America. We are a God-fearing people. We agree to differ about methods of worship, but we are united in believing in Divine Providence and in worshipping the God of Nations. We are the champions of religious right here and everywhere. It may be our privilege to give it our countenance and support. The Government is conscious of the obligation and the nation is conscious of the obligation. Let no man create divisions where there are none. "There is the nation God has blessed by our hands. What shall we do with it? Who is there who does not stand ready at all times to act in her behalf in a spirit of devoted and disinterested patriotism? We are yet only in the youth and first consciousness of our power. The day of our country's life is still but in its fresh morning. Let us lift our eyes to the great traits of life yet to be conquered in the interests of rightness and peace. Come, let us renew our allegiance to America, conserve her strength in its purity, make her chief among those who serve mankind, self-reverenced, self-commanded, mistress of all forces of quiet counsel, strong above all others in good will and the might of inviolable justice and right."

These for Beckenham. "America has not opened its doors to vain to men and women out of other nations. Who is there who does not stand ready at all times to act in her behalf in a spirit of devoted and disinterested patriotism? We are yet only in the youth and first consciousness of our power. The day of our country's life is still but in its fresh morning. Let us lift our eyes to the great traits of life yet to be conquered in the interests of rightness and peace. Come, let us renew our allegiance to America, conserve her strength in its purity, make her chief among those who serve mankind, self-reverenced, self-commanded, mistress of all forces of quiet counsel, strong above all others in good will and the might of inviolable justice and right."

These for Beckenham. "America has not opened its doors to vain to men and women out of other nations. The vast majority of those who have come to take advantage of her hospitality have united their spirits with hers as well as their fortunes. These men who speak alien sympathies are not their spokesmen, but are the spokesmen of small groups whom it is high time that the nation should call to a reckoning. The chief thing necessary in America in order that she should let all the world know that she is prepared to maintain her own great position is that the real voice of the nation should sound forth unmistakably and in majestic volume, in the deep union of a common, unshattering national feeling. I do not doubt that upon the first occasion, upon the first opportunity,

upon the first definite challenge, that voice will speak forth in tones which no man can doubt and with commands which no man dare gainsay or resist. "May I not say, while I am speaking of this, that there is another danger that we should guard against? We should refrain not only manifestations of racial feeling here in America where there should be none, but also every manifestation of religious and sectarian antagonism. It does not become Americans that within her borders, where every man is free to follow the dictates of his conscience and worship God as he pleases, men should raise the cry of church against church. To do that is to strike at the very spirit and heart of America. We are a God-fearing people. We agree to differ about methods of worship, but we are united in believing in Divine Providence and in worshipping the God of Nations. We are the champions of religious right here and everywhere. It may be our privilege to give it our countenance and support. The Government is conscious of the obligation and the nation is conscious of the obligation. Let no man create divisions where there are none. "There is the nation God has blessed by our hands. What shall we do with it? Who is there who does not stand ready at all times to act in her behalf in a spirit of devoted and disinterested patriotism? We are yet only in the youth and first consciousness of our power. LAMM IS STILL IN REPUBLICAN RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Swanger's Probable Candidacy Calls Statement From Former Judge as to Attitude.

SITUATION IS INVOLVED

McJinsey Expects Support of Organization; Former Partner to Fight It if He Enters Field.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5.—The probable entry of John E. Swanger, former Secretary of State, into the Republican primary contest for the nomination for Governor, has created a political situation in the Republican party as involved as that in the Democratic.

Stated by Swanger's statement to a Post-Dispatch correspondent Tuesday that he knew of no reason why he should not become a candidate, former Supreme Judge Henry Lamm, of St.
Louis, which also is Swanger's home, yesterday announced that "he never had said he would not accept the Republican nomination."

There are five Republicans who at least are receptive candidates for the nomination. They are, in addition to Swanger, E. E. McJinsey, editor of the Springfield Republican; Judge
Lamm, Hugh McIndoe, Mayor of Joplin, and Cecil W. Thomas, Mayor of Jefferson City.

Support of Two Is Local.
The candidacy of McIndoe and Thomas has not been given much consideration by the Republican organization, and neither has a very extensive support outside the district in which he resides.

McJinsey already has made an alliance with the leaders of the Kiel-Graves faction in St. Louis. He met Mayor Kiel and Circuit Clerk Graves last week in Excelsior Springs. Their conference is reported to have been attended by E. L. (Liv) Morris, standpat Republican, whose political methods frequently have been denounced by former Gov. Hadley and other Republican leaders of the progressive type.

Through the St. Louis alliance Mc-Jinsey hopes to capture the support of Chairman Bahler and the State organization. Bahler is known to be friendly to McJinsey.

The candidacy of Judge Lamm has not met with great favor among the professional politicians of his party. Judge Lamm never has shown the organization much consideration, and many times when at the Supreme bench indicated that his mind was not open to suggestions from political leaders. When the organization began casting about for a candidate it quickly dismissed Judge Lamm from the list. The reason assigned was that Judge Lamm was not an "organization man."

Swanger, who now threatens to get into the race and fight McJinsey, his former business partner, and the organization, always has been considered a strong supporter of the organization. He had expected to have the St. Louis organization with him.

When Hadley was Governor, Swanger frequently acted as a sort of scout for him in looking over the fields of applicants for appointment to State jobs. He frequently came to St. Louis, and, it is said, invariably returned with a recommendation that Hadley appoint a man supported by the organization. Hadley paid little attention to the organization and frequently rejected Swanger's recommendations.

Swanger has felt that this was not his fault and that the organization should stand by him, and the unmistakeable evidence in the Excelsior Springs conference of Kiel-Graves support for McJinsey has aroused Swanger to declare that if he becomes a candidate he will fight the organization.

The prospect of the nomination of Judge Lamm for Governor, which a few months ago seemed almost a certainty, has been made less probable recently by the active campaign made by McJinsey and the probability that Swanger will be a candidate. Judge Lamm has announced that he will not make a fight for the nomination, which means that he will not go into a campaign against active candidates. It now seems certain that McJinsey and Swanger will not let the nomination go to anybody without a fight.

RIDER UNHORSED BY AUTO

When He Goes After Animal Men in Machine Drive Awar.

Boy Bayless, 20 years old, of 417
Chippewa street, was thrown from his horse when the animal was hit by an automobile in front of 223 South King's highway at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.
The horse ran away and two men occupying the auto lifted Bayless into the car and started in pursuit. The horses stopped to graze on a lot about a dozen blocks south of the scene of the accident and the auto was stopped to permit Bayless to go after his mount.
When Bayless started toward his horse,
the men in the auto drove away.
Bayless said that he suffered pains in the back and left arm. He gave the police what he believed was the auto license number.

sons of her husband's kennel, Mrs.
C. T. Dumble, probably saved the life of her 8-year-old son, Jack, but was herself badly bitten yesterday.

Jack was playing in the back yard when attacked by the dogs. His cousins, alarmed, Mrs. Dumble flung the dogs off as best she could, the mother dragged her baby step by step to the kitchen door where a maid helped her get the boy inside. The maid also was bitten.

The physician pronounced the dogs on guard at the front door and means of a ladder stretched from the front stairs to a second-story window. His policeman killed the dogs.

GERMAN VIEW OF ASQUITH'S SPEECH ON COURSE OF WAR

"Clattering Generalities, Glossing Over of Facts and Juggling of Statistics."

BERLIN, Nov. 5, by wireless to Bayville.—The Overseas News Agency has made public the following concerning the speech of Herbert H. Asquith, the British Premier, in the House of Commons last Tuesday:

"Prime Minister Asquith's speech, which for several days before it was delivered had been announced with much ado by all the English, French and other allied papers, turned out to have been a collection of flat truisms and glittering generalities. Mr. Asquith by repeatedly repeating that his speech was no defense, merely proved that he feels he is in the position of a defendant who throws himself upon the mercy of the court."

"Mr. Asquith's intention was apparently to demonstrate to the English and allied nations how much England has done in the war, but since he was unable to show how much England had achieved, he merely pointed out the efficiency of the central Powers and their successes."

"Asquith Sleight of Hand."
"Mr. Asquith solemnly stated that the Germans had not advanced on the west front, which, translated into plain language, means that the much exalted Anglo-French offensive failed completely. Is he unaware of the fact that the question may be asked, where is the English navy, which is supposed to be superior in number of ships to the German navy?"

"Mr. Asquith's sleight of hand, however, is unable to juggle away England's critical financial position, and although he tries to slide smoothly over this question, nobody in the world will be deceived by his words nor by the awkward explanations given for the utter failure of the Entente Powers' diplomacy in the Balkans, where the much-advertised English protection of small neutral states was justly valued and answered by the small Balkan nations."

"Mr. Asquith's speech, which he himself confessed was made under a cloud of sky, is a strange mixture of commonplace facts, excuses, disguised avowals of shortcomings and juggling with statistics. As the entire German press points out, the speech has caused chattering of the war to reach the conclusion that Mr. Asquith indirectly made it in order to acknowledge the superior force of England's enemies and to confess his own inability to deal effectively with the present problems."

PIANO, BEATEN TO A RAG, OF NO USE AT THE SYMPHONY TEA

Unable to Respond to Kroeber's Tunes After a Long Season Under Syncope.

Ragtime had its revenge upon classical music yesterday afternoon, at the season's open symphony lecture tea at the Winter Garden, when E. R. Kroeber prepared to demonstrate on the piano the program which the Symphony Orchestra would play this afternoon at the Odeon. The lecturer struck his first chord and gave a start on obtaining only a spinnet-like tinkle.

After some investigation, he announced that the sustaining pedal was useless. It had been dislocated by a heavy blow from some one of the succession of "ragtime Paderewskis" who have afflicted the instrument.

Kroeber then said that he would be unable to play the second movement of Beethoven's Second Symphony, which he had intended performing in full. But, at last, a waiter crawled under the piano, tinkered at it a while, and finally put the pedal in order. Even then the instrument yielded only ghost-like sounds, for its strings had been beaten to death by the blows of virtuosos of syncope. Those who have had it at their mercy, it was promised that a piano in the prime of health would be provided for next week's lecture.

COMPLAINT BOARD HEARING ON THE EFFICIENCY BOARD TODAY

Chairman Rogers Summoned, Witnesses to Tell of Electrical Breakdown.

The Complaint Board will sit in judgment on the Efficiency Board this afternoon and hear testimony on charges made by candidates for appointment on the new Municipal Electrical Inspection Bureau.

An examination for places in this bureau recently was conducted by the Efficiency Board. The complaining candidates allege that insufficient time was given for candidates to show their efficiency in practical work, that some candidates were permitted to use textbooks while preparing their answers and that favoritism was shown to men who had been serving as temporary inspectors. The complainants are Carl C. Hoffmeister, 244 Oriole avenue, and A. M. Oberholt, 2013 Park avenue.

The Complaint Board summoned Chairman Rogers of the Efficiency Board to appear at today's hearing. After hearing testimony, the Complaint Board will have no authority to enforce its recommendations. It can only report its findings and recommendations to the Mayor.

Our Doll Hospital Is Now in Readiness

Bring the broken dollies to our complete Doll Hospital, and have them examined by Drs. Finsen and Manders, who will readily place them in first-class condition at very small cost.

We would advise these repair dollies to be brought here as soon as possible. This will give us better time, in which to give them careful attention, and avoid the rush that will come later toward Christmas.

Our Doll Hospital is situated in the Basement Toy Department, next to the Doll Parlor. Here you will find all sizes and all prices of doll heads, also dresses, shoes and stockings.

We call your attention to the three kinds of beautiful Dolls which will be on sale Saturday. Now is the time to buy undressed Dolls, in order to dress them properly for Christmas.

CONVENTION FIGHT AIDED BY PARTY ORGANIZATIONS

State and City Republican Committees to Make Active Campaign for Meeting.

The Republican State and city organizations, Mayor Kiel, National Committeeman Thomas K. Niedringhaus, Congressman Dyer and Webster and former Congressman Bartholdt are co-operating actively with the National Conventions Association in the effort to get the Republican National Convention for St. Louis.

Not only has a letter signed by State Chairman Jacob L. Zahler, City Chairman John Schmidt, Mayor Kiel, National Committeeman Niedringhaus and Dyer, Webster and Bartholdt been sent to all members of the Republican National Committee, but influential Republicans have been sent to visit the members of the committee and the presidential candidates. Congressman Dyer, Webster and former Congressman Bartholdt also have sent letters to every Republican member of Congress asking their aid in the convention contest.

The strong point made by the Republicans is that Missouri is a doubtful State, and that the holding of the National Convention here would help the party in its fight to carry the State.

Kirkwood, Webster Groves and Earl St. Louis have volunteered to help St. Louis get the convention. A convention campaign will be organized in East St. Louis next week. The Business Men's Credit Association of Kirkwood will meet Nov. 5 and discuss how it can help St. Louis get the convention.

The Civic League and the Merchants' Credit Association of Webster have both volunteered to aid in the convention movement, and make not only a subscription to the fund, but render whatever other service they can.

Members of the Business Men's League began sending in their personal subscriptions today. Chairman Smith said the members were subscribing very liberally. Every member of the 125 affiliated organizations is sending letters to its members asking them to make subscriptions of not less than $1 nor more than $10. No money will have to be paid by the subscribers to the fund before Jan. 1, and not then unless St. Louis gets one or both of the conventions. All subscriptions are contingent upon getting one or both conventions.

A big concert for the benefit of the conventions fund probably will be given on the night of Nov. 12. The free use of the Coliseum was tendered yesterday by President A. C. Einstein to D. W. B. Clark, president of the West End Business Men's Association, which organized the concert. The Symphony Orchestra will play at the concert, and the Apollo Club and several other musical organizations will assist.

It is thought that enough money can be made at the concert to pay all the preliminary expenses of the conventions campaign.

PASSERSBY GET PAINT SHOWER WHEN SCAFFOLD ROPE BREAKS

Workers on a sign at Broadway and Washington Street in Air Tilt Policeman Marcus Thum.

J. T. Evans of 2108 Kookuk street and J. W. Gassaway of 2239 St. Elmo avenue, Maplewood, were standing on a scaffold painting a sign at the third floor of the building at Broadway and Washington avenue yesterday afternoon, when one of the ropes broke and one end of the scaffold dropped.

Each painter seized a guy rope and dangled in the air until a policeman ran to the second floor and dragged them to safety through windows.

The painters' buckets of paint showered pedestrians, changing the color of their raincoat. The following reported to the police that their clothing was damaged: Miss Anna Mulhady, 1110 South Twelfth street; Miss Susan Kanwith, 1212 St. Mine avenue; Miss Margaret Reilly, 2712 Armand place; Arthur Brocher, 516 North Twentieth street; Robert Crump, 1542 Wells avenue; Earl Hueston, 1709 Washington avenue.

SUES FOR DIVORCE AFTER "WIFE" WEDS ANOTHER MAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Col. Eugene Kelly Austin of the Seventh regiment of the National Guard of New York, nephew of Gen. S. F. Austin, after whom Austin, Tex., was named, has sued for a divorce, although his wife obtained a divorce decree from him in Philadelphia last February.

Col. Austin names as correspondent Major David Banks, publisher, banker and one of the best known Guardians in the State, who married Mrs. Austin four months after she obtained the divorce.

Col. Austin's lawyer insists that the divorce Mrs. Austin-Banks obtained in Philadelphia is invalid and she is still the Colonel's wife. He says Col. Austin never was served personally with papers in Philadelphia. He declares Col. Austin has brought his suit merely because he wishes to know his exact status.

PEOPLE OF GERMANY PUT VIRTUALLY ON A RATION BASIS TO CONSERVE FOOD

Severe Drought and British Fleet Cause Shortage of Necessaries; Land Barons Accused of Exploiting Nation's Hunger.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.
(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)
LONDON, Nov. 5.—Entirely upon the evidence of their own latest official publications, it is manifest that the Germans' food situation on the threshold of the second winter of the war is much more serious than in November, 1914.

The iron grip of the British fleet, and particularly the activities of Admiral Jellicoe's submarines in the Baltic, are making themselves felt, say the British, as never before.

A year ago it was unnecessary for the Kaiser's Government to resort to the more stringent regulations than the introduction of bread cards and restriction on breadstuffs in general on the ration basis. Such steps were found advisable even at the end of the more than average good 1914 harvest, and while Germany was in possession of a vast reserve of American cereals imported as long before the war as April and May.

This year it was hoped that the conversion of every available acre into agricultural land would produce crops which would provide the country with as generous a supply of farm products as Germany had on hand in November a year ago.

The Government figured that the Fatherland would thus be able to tide over another winter and spring as successfully as before. But the 1915 German crops fell little short of failure. Despite the unprecedentedly large acreage, only the potato harvest was above normal.

Long Period of Drought.
The months of relentless drought on the threshold of harvest time completely obliterated the prospects of the expected bumper yield. The result is, according to the best information available here, that while it would be exaggerating to assert that the Germans are face to face with starvation, they are confronted by far the gravest food conditions with which they have had to deal during the war.

The Federal Council has adopted a measure for the regulation of the consumption and price of milk and also for prices of swine and pork. The food laws decreed by the Imperial Government, which are coming into force this week, seem to tell their own story.

They provide for putting the Germans on rations in practically all the necessities of life.

The regulations for restricting the consumption of meat in restaurants and the sale in butcher shops are the most drastic in the history of any country. Butchers have practically been converted into a state monopoly.

The maximum price is fixed for butter, at 4 cents a pound, and soon will be for margarine, cheese, eggs, lard and animal products. The introduction of official butter cards, on the bread ration system, is imminent.

Milk commands prices, which, the Socialist press declares, practically puts it beyond the reach of the poorer classes.

The municipality of Berlin has taken steps to insure that sufficient quantities at normal cost shall at least be available for nursing mothers, infants, invalids and others to whom milk is a vital necessity.

Even fish, poultry and game are being subjected to official price regulation. The newspapers have been permitted to discuss the food situation with considerable freedom. All agree that the Government waited almost too long to grapple with the problem. It is the consensus of opinion that the agrarian element in the Prussian provinces, the so-called "junkers," who long waged war on American meats and grain, are almost as much responsible for the prevailing state of affairs as the condition imposed by the war.

The land barons are openly accused of exploiting the nation's hunger and practicing food usury. The Socialists declare that the junkers' speculative machinations in the meat and bread-stuffs market are of so criminal a character that if they weren't the props of the throne and the pillars of the Government, they would have long ago been severely dealt with as enemies of Germany no less dangerous than the armed foes the Kaiser's legions are facing at the front.

The agricultural monopolists retort that conditions for which they are not responsible have necessitated abnormal prices of all kinds. They point to the fact that Germany is ordinarily dependent on Russia for fodder for her cattle, and this is entirely shut off. The consequence is that much produce which was customarily converted into human food must now feed the animals.

Meat Regulations.
The following are the new meat and fat regulations:

On Mondays no restaurants or refreshment establishments of any sort may offer or sell anything except cold meats. Fried, baked or roasted meats are prohibited. The object is to save fat.

On Tuesdays neither butchers nor restaurants may sell or serve meat or victuals made of meat of any kind what soever. This is not forbidden.

On Wednesdays there are no restrictions.

On Thursdays the regulations are the same as for Mondays.

On Fridays, the same as Tuesdays.

On Saturdays the restaurants may not serve pork in any form.

On Sundays there are no restrictions. The law explains that, wherever meat is referred to, the public is to understand beef, veal, mutton, pork, poultry and game.

The only exception permitted on the so-called no-fat day is that baked meats may be served in cold slices as sandwiches. Ham sandwiches will also be legal on Saturday, the no-pork day.

It is expressly pointed out that the meat and fat laws refer only to public eating places. Nothing is directly forbidden private housekeepers, but the Government "expects that the patriotism of housewives and the public generally will induce them voluntarily to accept the burdens legally imposed upon the butchers and restaurant keepers."

The Government particularly expects that housewives will not attempt to circumvent the law by buying unusually large quantities of meats on Mondays and Thursdays, in anticipation of the succeeding days of meat restrictions.

Fines for Offenders.
Offenders against the meat laws may be fined $75, or may be given three months' imprisonment, while they also run the risk of having their premises closed. The regulations for the establishment of maximum prices for fish and game clothes the Imperial Chancellery with the right to fix them on the basis of market conditions in Berlin, after consultation with experts. All communities of 10,000 or more must follow the prices thus established.

The maximum prices refer only to retail transactions, which are understood to cover purchases up to 25 pounds.

The regulations regarding potatoes clothes the Imperial Chancellery with the right to fix prices according to local conditions in various districts. Four different potato districts are established, namely, Northern and Eastern Germany, including the Berlin district, where the price shall not exceed, at wholesale, $12.75 a ton; Central and Western Germany, $14.25 a ton; the central district, including Hamburg, Bremen and Lübeck, $15.75 a ton; and Southern Germany, $16.25 a ton.

The regulations for butter, milk, cheese, lard, margarine, eggs, artificial lard and butter products of various sorts are undergoing consideration at the Imperial Price Regulation Office, Berlin. Stringent restrictions in regard to the use of cream of all kinds have been in force for some time.

Whipped cream, a favorite with the "junkers" or "flappers," has been banned for months. It is now illegal to use cream for anything except the production of butter and cheese. No use for pastry purposes is strictly prohibited. Many people are accustomed themselves to drink coffee without milk or cream.

Bank of England Head to Remain.
LONDON, Nov. 5.—Directors of the Bank of England have recommended the election of Lord Cunliffe as governor for a fourth year at the annual meeting in April. The recommendation is equivalent to election. The governor usually retires after serving two years.

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH "DANDERINE"

Spend 25 cents! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Try this! Hair gets beautiful, wavy and thick in few moments.

If you care for heavy hair, that stands with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots fall out, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. It eventually—why not now?—ADV.

ARMY MAN SAYS BIG SLIDE MEANS A BETTER CANAL

Gen. Hodges, Former Engineer at Nation's Ditch, Declares Future Trouble Will Be Prevented.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The great slide in Galliard Cut of the Panama Canal, which has choked that part of the great isthmian waterway with millions of cubic yards of rock and dirt, until the channel is only about 25 feet in width, while the depth has been reduced from 45 feet to varying depths of from three to 15 feet, was clearly foreseen as long ago as October of last year.

For months before the sudden plunge of the great mass into the canal, Gen. Goethals, Governor of the Canal Zone, and his associates worked day and night keeping the channel clear, their calculations being such that had the slide continued its way slowly the engineering staff would have been able to free the threatened part of the cut as fast as the dirt and rock came into it.

Gen. Hodges Explains.
This statement was made by Brigadier-General H. F. Hodges, U. S. A., who until his promotion to his present rank, last year, was Assistant Chief Engineer of the Canal, and who knows every foot of the waterway from the Atlantic to the Pacific terminals.

Gen. Hodges, who has kept in close touch with the situation caused by a result of the great slide, talked of the problem confronting Gen. Goethals.

For the benefit of the pessimistic, it can be stated that instead of irreparably damaging the canal the great slide will in the end make the canal a safer water course, and when it is removed the danger of a recurrence will, to a great extent, have been eliminated.

Gen. Hodges, who now commands the North Atlantic Coast Artillery District, which embraces all of the fortifications from Fort Totten north to Maine, with headquarters at Fort Totten, talked at his headquarters while before him were copies of the reports made to the Government by the Panama Canal officials concerning the Galliard Cut slide.

Foreseen Last October.
"What has happened," said Gen. Hodges, was clearly foreseen as far back as October of last year. That is, we saw that the mass was slowly moving into the prism. It was, of course, impossible to foresee that it would be so suddenly dislodged and plunge in its entirety into the cut, blocking it to traffic and causing the great tie-up that has followed.

"When it was discovered that the rock and earth involved in the slide was moving, the most powerful of dredges were put to work removing the rock and other material as fast as it came into the threatened part of the cut. All went well and the dredges were able to keep the channel comparatively free until in the early part of September, the mass of sliding material suddenly began to move so fast that the block followed.

Unfortunately it came with a rush and the dredges were entirely unable to cope with the situation. The result is what the world has since learned and the problem now is to get it out. You may rest assured the problem will be successfully worked out and the canal, when it is again clear, will be a better canal than it ever was before.

"About 10,000,000 cubic yards of matter were involved in the slide. The fact that it was in motion was, as I have stated, known to the canal engineers since October of last year. For months, until the sudden rush of September, the movement was so slow that it was moving could be detected by the dropping particles. The east side of the slide is north of what is known as Gold Hill and north of Contractors' Hill on the west, a part of the western area being the site of the village of Culebra, now occupied by a part of the Panama Canal garrison, and known as Camp Culebra.

Gen. Goethals' Problem.
"Since Sept. 20 until the present time the slide has been in continuous motion, the length of the channel obstructed being about 150 feet. The width at the worst point has been reduced to about 25 feet and the depth to between three and 15 feet. The finished width of the channel at the point where the trouble is will be 50 feet, and the depth 45 feet. These figures indicate the size of the problem confronting Gen. Goethals and his men.

The canal force is now working day and night to free the channel and make possible the reopening of the canal to traffic. The most powerful units in the dredging fleet are being used, among them the powerful 15-yard dipper dredges Gamboa and Paraiso, while a third dredge of similar capacity, the Casacada, while left Philadelphia for the Canal Zone several weeks ago, is undoubtedly also at work now. These three dredges should be able to take out an average of from 12,000 to 15,000 cubic yards of earth a day each. The dredging work of these powerful vessels, it should be pointed out, is supplemented by smaller dredges, and with all the units at work, the monthly output should be in excess of 1,500,000 cubic yards of material.

"Of course, the space is contracted, and it is sometimes difficult to find good positions for all the units of the dredging fleet. The material, as fast as it is dredged out, is loaded into scows and towed about 10 miles to the dumping grounds in Gatun Lake. The material is almost entirely of rock. The rock is of a formation which crumbles after a period of exposure to air. In places this rock is quite hard, and blasting is necessary in its removal. Not infrequently the buckets take in masses of rock that are so heavy that in order to remove them from the buckets surface blasting has to be resorted to before the buckets can be freed."

Crude Oil Up 5 Cents a Barrel.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 5.—Another advance in the price of crude oil was announced today by the South Pennsylvania Oil Co., 5 cents a barrel being added to each grade except Ragland, which was quoted at higher. The new prices are: Pennsylvania crude, $1.85; Mercus Black, Newcasella and Corning, $1.85; Cabell, $1.85; Homersett, $1.85; Ragland, $1.85. Producers predicted $3 for Pennsylvania crude, the base of this market, before next spring.

GOULD BROKE HIS WORD, SAYS BUSH AFTER HIS OUSTER

Arthur Coppell Succeeds St.

MUDGE TO MANAGE ROAD

Missouri Pacific Receiver Says
Gould Promised to Make E.
L. Brown Head of Line.

By Leased Wire From the New York
Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—George J. Gould has recaptured the Denver and Rio Grande and has ousted B. F. Bush of St. Louis from its presidency. H. U. Mudge, formerly president of the Rock Island, who yesterday resigned from that company, will be the operating head of the system with headquarters in Denver.

Bush says George J. Gould broke his word with him and thereby accomplished his purpose. Gould personally has made no comment on the accusation.

Gould was ousted from control of the Missouri Pacific at the annual meeting of the company last March and had previously lost control of the Wabash and Western Maryland and until yesterday was supposed to be out of the Denver and Rio Grande and was in the Western chain in the Gould transcontinental system. The Missouri Pacific owned 40 per cent of the stock of Denver and Rio Grande, which in turn owned two-thirds of the stock of Western Pacific. But Gould turned over Denver and Rio Grande directors. He threw out Bush, who as president of the Missouri Pacific had allied himself with Kuhn, Loeb & Co., in the Missouri Pacific fight, put in his son, Kingdon Gould, as vice president of the Denver and Rio Grande, organized an Executive Committee consisting almost entirely of intimate associates of the Gould family.

Bush is indignant. The meeting of directors was the first after the annual meeting, Oct. 8. Previous to that meeting, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Bush claim, an agreement had been reached whereby Bush was to succeed E. T. Jeffery as chairman of the board, and E. L. Brown, vice president in charge of operation, was to become president. The Goulds, according to the alleged agreement, were to retain representation on the directorate, and the Kuhn, Loeb party in view of the Gould acquiescence in the Kuhn, Loeb operating plans, agreed not to vote against the Goulds at the annual meeting.

Bush and his associates were surprised at the sudden shift at the meeting of the board yesterday. Bush was so indignant, and came out with a statement, as follows:

"I favored the election to the presidency of E. L. Brown, whose splendid record as vice president in charge of operations speaks for itself. My only comment on the result of the election is that George Gould has broken his word to me."

The Gould party elected as president to succeed Bush, Arthur Coppell of the Stock Exchange firm of Maitland, Coppell & Co. Jeffery was retained as chairman of the board and also made chairman of the Executive Committee. Other members of the Executive Committee are: Coppell, George J. Gould, Kingdon Gould, E. L. Marston, Edward D. Adams, representative of the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, and Benjamin Nicol.

Coppell returned to Mr. Bush as follows:

"After consulting with some of the large stockholders, we are convinced that to be successful the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad must be entirely independent. Its chief operating officers must reside in Colorado and in no wise be connected with the operation of any other railroad interests."

"For the last few years the president of our road has held the same office in both the Missouri Pacific and the Western Pacific Railroads, which two properties have lately come under the jurisdiction of the courts. He has also been appointed receiver of the Missouri Pacific and also of the Iron Mountain road."

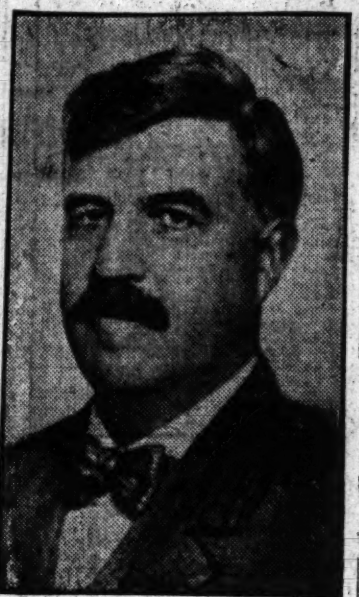

"We are of the opinion that it is detrimental to the welfare of the company to have as its operating head a man who must give a large part of his time to these two roads and who is a resident of St. Louis, nearly 1000 miles away from the company's operating headquarters."

"Therefore we have secured the services of H. U. Mudge, who will establish his headquarters at Denver and become the chief operator of the road."

Mudge has been president of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific and was named as one of the receivers of that road last spring. As receiver and president his power has been curtailed by the court and his co-receiver, Judge Dickinson of Chicago, who has brought a suit to recover $7,500,000 from him and other old directors. He resigned from the Rock Island yesterday.

Woman and Man Comin Arrested.
Mrs. Ethel McMullen, a widow, 30 years old, of 2600 Dickson street, and her first cousin, William Eberhardt, 37 years old, a clerk, who gave his address as 2600 Dickson street, were arrested at the former's home last night on complaint of Eberhardt's wife, who, with her six children, lives near Chicago. She wrote to the police here that she had been deserted.

ON "MOTHERHOOD STRIKE" IN FIGHT FOR THE BALLOT

Some Women in Non-Suffrage States Have Adopted Plan,
Says Mrs. Sarah Bard Field.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—A "motherhood strike" has been begun by some women of nonsuffrage states, and may be adopted by others, to continue until they get the suffrage franchise, if a suggestion Mrs. Sarah Bard Field made here today is adopted. Mrs. Field is on her way from San Francisco to Washington by automobile.

"I know of certain women of nonsuffrage states who will deny themselves the privilege of motherhood until they receive the vote," declared Mrs. Field. "And I do not blame them. It is a wonderful thing to have the companionship of children, as I know well for my own boy and girl, are the joy of my life. But the cause of suffrage has led many a woman to make tremendous sacrifices."

$100,000 Pledged to New Suffrage
Campaign in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—One hundred thousand dollars in pledges and $400 in a basket collection for the new campaign fund of the suffragists of this State was raised last night in less than an hour at Cooper Union, where the hosts of "Votes-for-Women" workers and supporters had gathered. The women were jubilant over the success spelled by half a million votes cast in New York State last Tuesday for suffrage. Miss Mary Garrett Hay, "Big Boss" of the woman suffrage party, presided.

The donors honored every leader in pledges and the fire department with a $100 gift for the fund. James Lees Laddlow, who had pledged $200, followed it with $100 as a tribute to the police of New York.

Money came in from other states, including Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. The woman suffrage party pledged $25,000. Mrs. Norman Beer Whitehouse and Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, for the Publicity Council, followed with $10,000. Buffalo suffragists sent $500; Rochester gave $400; Miss Harriet May Mills, $200; the Equal Franchise Society, $200; the College Equal Suffrage League, $100; the New York State Association, $500; Mrs. Ethel Showers, $100; Mrs. Edgerton Parson, $100. William G. Wilcox of Richmond pledged $1000 a year till the vote was won.

BRITISH LIKELY TO OBTAIN
$300,000,000 MORE CREDIT

Bankers' Committee in America and London Reach Formation of Terms of Issue.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Plans to extend supplemental credits to the British have assumed definite form. A committee of American bankers is being formed to cooperate with a committee representing London financial institutions. Forms of the new credit have narrowed to two.

The first plan is the acceptance by trust companies and State banks of finance bills drawn by London banks and bankers, of six months' maturity, at 4 per cent and 5 per cent. Such bills have been taken by some trust companies in this city.

The second plan contemplates taking by national banks of British acceptance of bills drawn in this country on account of exports of commodities. Such bills' acceptance may run nine months and be taken by national banks, which, in turn, may rediscount them with Federal Reserve banks. The interest rate on these nine-month bills will be slightly lower than on those of shorter maturity.

The British committee has said that it is not feasible to secure these new British borrowings by deposit of American securities held in Great Britain as collateral, but that the British are willing to secure these forms of obligation by British Government bonds. New York bankers have accepted that proposal.

The amount of the new credits will certainly reach $300,000,000 soon, and, according to bankers, will likely run to $500,000,000 before the end of the year.

HOLLAND ASKS FOR FULL INQUIRY INTO "DEAR BOY" LETTER

Art Director Declares He Believes He Can Prove It "Frame-Up" to Get His Job.

Robert A. Holland, director of the City Art Museum in Forest Park, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he wanted either to be proved guilty or thoroughly vindicated in the inquiry being made into the "Dear Boy" letter which was addressed to the director of the Art Museum and which recently was sent to the Efficiency Board. He said that he did not want any "half-way" investigation.

To this end, Holland asserted, he yesterday had personally asked Mayor Kiel to keep the original letter in the Mayor's safe until some day next week. At that time, Holland said, he would get the letter and turn it over to the Board of Control of the Art Museum, or to anyone the board might designate to receive it. W. K. Bixby, chairman of the board, has declined the offer to turn the original letter over to the board, so that he might have a chance to perfect his evidence.

The museum director repeated his denial that he ever had received such a letter. It was mailed from New York Sept. 10 and was written on stationery of the Martha Washington Hotel. The initial "M." was signed to the letter. On that day, Miss Madeleine Borggraeve, secretary of the museum, was in New York at the Martha Washington Hotel. The letter related to museum, as well as personal matters. Miss Borggraeve also had denied any knowledge of the letter.

It was sent anonymously to the Efficiency Board by "Art-Interested Taxpayer," who stated it had been found in Forest Park, and that the writer thought the efficiency of Director Holland and Secretary Borggraeve was involved.

An investigation by the Missourians led them to a Mr. Stoney, who broke into laughter when they inquired about one Capt. Brown of Cedar Grove, Mo. Stoney then told them about the expedition to the efficiency of Director Holland and Secretary Borggraeve. He said that he was in San Francisco in 1909, and took his party as far as Sydney, Australia.

They say the $10-a-day detective they hired to watch the captain caught him making frequent trips to a saloon, although he had represented himself as a total abstemious.

When Ellis decided to come home, the rest of the party remained a few days in the hope that they could induce Capt. Brown to tell his secret, but he was noncommunicative, and they gave it up. They could still think themselves that his business affairs had caused them to make one of the expedition. R. C. Hardin, treasurer of the expedition, said that he was holding on to what money had not been spent getting to San Francisco.

Blair probably was the most disappointed of the treasure seekers. He resigned his position at the Muehlbach Hotel in Kansas City, where he had been when he left his hotel, John T. Blair of Marshall, Mo. that he was going to see the Panama Exposition, the treasure hunt presumably being a secret.

Some members of the company still profess to have faith in Brown. They lay the failure to the fact that the European war has made shipping conditions such that it is unsafe now to venture into the South Seas.

FOUGHT FOR TWENTY YEARS AGAINST DESTRUCTIVE CATARRH GERMS

Then Breathed Hyomei for a Few Weeks and Catarrh
Almost Gone.

Here is a letter that we sincerely ask everyone to read. If you suffer from catarrh of the head, nose or throat, read it over twice, and then consider if you can afford to ignore a prescription with the healing virtue of Hyomei (pronounce it High-o-me).

Mr. Thomas F. Walsh, 2026 Murray street, Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

"I have been a sufferer from Catarrh for over twenty years. I doctored off and on for fifteen years, but still after all the doctoring and drugging I got no relief."

"Finally my ailment became so severe that I was practically deaf in one ear and almost so in the other."

"My wife saw your ad in the paper and paid one dollar for a Hyomei bottle. I immediately began to use it according to directions, and the results were remarkable. I have used another bottle of Hyomei, and I can truthfully say that it is the first relief I have experienced in twenty years."

"This sounds like strong language. Nevertheless it is the truth."

"I feel there is nothing like Hyomei—a boon to the sufferer of a loathsome disease, Catarrh. I consider it a pleasure to recommend"

TREASURE SEEKERS BACK, Sadder BUT MUCH WISER MEN

Missourians Got as Far as San Francisco When Dream Was Dissipated.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 5.—There may be treasure worth millions buried on a South Sea island, but the party of business men who went from the Missouri Ozarks two weeks ago to find it failed in their mission. They got only as far as San Francisco and one by one they have drifted back to their respective homes at Springfield, Kansas City or Mountain Grove, content to leave the gold undisturbed and congratulating themselves that there remains intact about $5000 of their original capital of $7500 to be redistributed among them.

As for Capt. James Brown, who induced the men to join him in the expedition by the promise that he would direct them to the hiding place of the wealth, the members of the party are not wholly in agreement. Some want the British Government, whose subject he claims to be, to either punish him or make him reveal the secret of the treasure. Others are for taking strenuous action against him, but frankly admit they don't know what grounds they have to act on.

All are agreed on one point—that the old captain underwent a complete reversal of attitude toward them between their departure from Kansas City and their arrival at San Francisco.

Fred Ellis, a Springfield insurance man, was the first "investor" to return. Soon thereafter came Frank P. Blair of Kansas City and R. C. Hardin and C. A. Swenson of Mountain Grove.

Ellis became suspicious soon after the party reached San Francisco, where it was planned to buy a $500 fishing smack to make the ocean voyage. He said Capt. Brown had at that time practically severed communication with his backers and began to run around with San Franciscans with whom it seemed he was trying to promote a similar enterprise.

Had Another Expedition.
An investigation by the Missourians led them to a Mr. Stoney, who broke into laughter when they inquired about one Capt. Brown of Cedar Grove, Mo. Stoney then told them about the expedition to the efficiency of Director Holland and Secretary Borggraeve. He said that he was in San Francisco in 1909, and took his party as far as Sydney, Australia.

They say the $10-a-day detective they hired to watch the captain caught him making frequent trips to a saloon, although he had represented himself as a total abstemious.

When Ellis decided to come home, the rest of the party remained a few days in the hope that they could induce Capt. Brown to tell his secret, but he was noncommunicative, and they gave it up. They could still think themselves that his business affairs had caused them to make one of the expedition. R. C. Hardin, treasurer of the expedition, said that he was holding on to what money had not been spent getting to San Francisco.

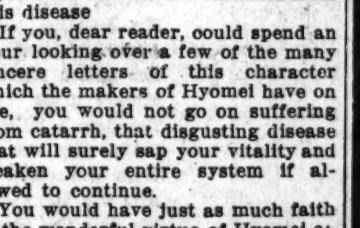

Blair probably was the most disappointed of the treasure seekers. He resigned his position at the Muehlbach Hotel in Kansas City, where he had been when he left his hotel, John T. Blair of Marshall, Mo. that he was going to see the Panama Exposition, the treasure hunt presumably being a secret.

Some members of the company still profess to have faith in Brown. They lay the failure to the fact that the European war has made shipping conditions such that it is unsafe now to venture into the South Seas.

BRITISH TRADE SHIP. ATTACKED BY 3 WARPLANES

Vessel Escapes German Bombs and Rifle and Machine Gun Fire by Zigzag Course.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Germany appears to be trying a new method of attack on British merchantmen with aeroplanes. The captain of the Cork steamer, Avocet, which has arrived at Manchester, tells a story, according to the Liverpool Journal of Commerce, of a 35-minute engagement with three aeroplanes at 11 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 30. One of the aeroplanes was a large battle plane which dropped 25 bombs, some of which missed the steamer by not more than seven feet.

When the bombs were exhausted the battle plane fired on the Avocet with a machine gun. The ship's sides and decks were struck by bullets, but all the crew escaped injury.

At a height of from 800 to 1000 feet all the aeroplanes dropped bombs and attacked the steamer with rifles. The Avocet's escape was due to zig-zag maneuvering and the fact that the aeroplanes dared not fly lower.

WAGNER ELECTRIC COMPANY MAKING SUPPLIES FOR ALLIES

Officials of Concern Say Plant for Several Months Has Been Turning Out Large War Orders.

It was learned today from officials of the Wagner Electric Manufacturing Co. that the concern has for several months past been turning out large war orders for the allies. The working force of the company has been greatly increased in recent months and the work on the orders requires running the plant day and night.

Officials of the company would not say what the orders they are filling call for but it was learned from other sources that the concern recently started work on an order for 500,000 percussion caps for shrapnel shells. No finished shells are being turned out by the company's factory, the officials said.

What governments had placed the orders with the Wagner company could not be learned. The officials said this information would be kept secret.

BUYS TWO AUTOS FOR NOTHING, RELATIVES QUESTION HIS SANITY

Harley Goodner, 31 years old, a farmer of 731 North Fifty-third street, East St. Louis, who got two automobiles within a week for nothing, was arrested yesterday at the request of his relatives and taken to Bellevue for an inquiry into his sanity.

A week ago Goodner obtained an automobile from somebody in St. Louis, although his relatives say he had no money. He drove the machine to Venice, Ill., where it was wrecked in a collision with a tree. Goodner was arrested for reckless driving, but later released and departed leaving the machine where it was.

He went back to St. Louis Tuesday, "bought" a machine from a man who gave his name as Dr. Eckert, at a purchase price of $500, giving Eckert a check for $100, which was returned as worthless. Eckert had sent his chauffeur in the machine to East St. Louis with Goodner after the "sale." Eckert told the East St. Louis police department yesterday that the chauffeur had not yet returned. Eckert declined to give his own full name or address. No trace of his machine has been found.

Surgeons Can Tell Kind of Fighting From Wounds

St. Louis Doctor, Recently From American Hospital Near Paris, Says Injuries of Soldiers "Describe" Nature of Attacks at Front.

The mortality among wounded French soldiers who are treated at the American hospital in Paris is surprisingly low, according to Dr. Nathaniel Allison, of 4917 Berlin avenue, who has returned from three months' volunteer hospital service there. In spite of the fact that practically all the wounds are infected when the men are received at the hospital, the lives of probably 80 per cent, he says, are saved.

Dr. Allison left Paris July 15 and arrived at Paris July 28 and entered upon his service at the hospital once. He served continuously until Oct. 20.

"The American Ambulance Hospital, as it is called, is a building which had just been completed for a high school at the beginning of the war," Dr. Allison said. "It is supported by American contributions. The medical staff is largely American. The staff consists of four surgeons, three assistant surgeons, four resident physicians and 20 internes. Nearly everyone connected with it is American or has American affiliations. Even the ambulance corps is made up of young Americans who went to Paris and volunteered for that service."

600 Beds in Hospital.

"There are 600 beds in the hospital. They are always filled. Paris is 65 or 70 miles from the nearest trenches. The wounded reach the hospital within 24 hours. The transportation arrangements are excellent. The wounded are taken first to the first-aid stations and from there to the field hospitals. From these all who can be moved are sent back by motor ambulances to the railroads and hurried to Paris."

"There are 230 ambulances, each with a carrying capacity of five or six. The stretchers, all uniform, are made to fit the ambulances and the railroad cars and it is never necessary to change a

WOMAN AND REALTY COMPANY IN A BOUNDARY LINE DISPUTE

When the Ax Was Laid to a Peach Tree Which She Claimed Miss Grace Called in the Police.

Miss Norma Grace, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Grace, 5430 Cabanne avenue, is the owner of two flat buildings at 424-25 Delmar boulevard. The property adjoining on the east is owned by the Rubicon Real Estate and Investment Co. of 4642 Easton avenue.

The company yesterday afternoon started to run lines preparatory to erecting a one-story warehouse and found that, according to the city survey, the boundary line claimed by Miss Grace extended onto their property, 6 inches in the front and 30 inches in the rear of the lot. In running the lines a peach tree which Miss Grace declared was on her property was cut down and Miss Grace complained to the police department.

This morning when the builders started to break ground they began to cut through a cement walk which was said to extend partly over the line and three policemen were sent to the place to prevent trouble. The Rubicon company agreed to run the line so that the walk would not be damaged.

HE RODE "LIKE H—," BUT COULDN'T GET DOCTOR FOR KING

Physicians Were All Out With Regiments When George of England Fell From Horse.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A letter from Corporal Fred Clark of the Military Mounted Police, describes his futile ride of two miles in search of a doctor when King George was injured by a fall from his horse. He says:

"The horse started kicking as the King lay on the ground, but several of the staff officers ran and picked the King up. They then laid him down again, a little distance away. One of them ran up to me and exclaimed: 'Go find a doctor. Ride like hell.'"

"I went on a straight gallop for two miles, but could not find a doctor anywhere. They were all out on duty with their regiments. So I returned and reported that I could not find one."

"Then they picked the King up again and carried him to his automobile. He had been lying on the ground, evidently very seriously injured. I happened to be the only mounted man there except the King's escort."

The King is recovering slowly from the effects of his fall. The following official bulletin was issued today:

"The King had a somewhat better night. His appetite is improving, but he still has some pain, especially on attempting any movement."

MAN SAYS HE LOST $30,000 IN FAKE HORSE RACE SCHEME

W. P. Stimmel of Virginia Aves Chicago Federal Authorities to Search for Four New Acquaintances.
CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—W. P. Stimmel of Phoenix, Va., has appealed to Federal officials to recover $30,000 in money and his note for $34,500 out of which he alleges he was swindled in Springfield, Ill., on a fake horse racing scheme.

Stimmel told the authorities that he was induced to wager the money in a Springfield poolroom as a result of forming acquaintance with four men whom he met in Chicago. One of the men, who the authorities believe are the same who swindled Dr. William Kirby, a Chicago private banker, out of thousands of dollars, was introduced to Stimmel as a betting commissioner for a number of racing stables.

The Golden Bantam

The story of how a kidnaped child was traced and found by an insignia of a Chinese Society.

By Eva Morse Henricks.

"AND then you pulled his pistol!" "Yes, dear, and then all three scurried."

"And the cute little yellow man?" "Wang! He dropped to his knees and kissed my hand, and said I was his preserver, and gave me the golden bantam."

Little Flora Ward sat in the lap of her great friend, Alvin Prescott, immensely interested in quite a tragic recital. He was telling her of an encounter in a dark side street the evening before with three sinister Chinamen. They had backed another yellow-hued countryman against a brick wall. One of the assassins held his throat in a talon-like clutch. A third was advancing to dispatch him with a glittering steel knife, when Prescott intervened.

"And what was the 'golden bantam,' Mr. Prescott?" lisped the interested little one.

Prescott fumbled in his pocket. Eager eyes scanned the odd-looking pin he drew forth. It represented a bantam rampant, with curious script characters on its outspread wings.

"I think the three wicked men were highlanders, my dear," explained Prescott—"that is, men belonging to a cruel society who make a business of killing people they don't like. Poor Wang Po, as he called himself, must belong to some other secret society. I suppose the golden bantam is its emblem, for he kept saying that the bantam pin 'would make me friends with all his people.'"

"What a sweet, cute little pin it is!" said Flora affluently.

"Well, you shall have the trinket," replied Prescott, and pinned it on a band of ribbon at her neck.

"Oh, how good you are!" cried Flora ecstatically, and jumped to the floor and ran over to where a charming young lady was busy at some fancy work. "See, Aunt Lydia—the beautiful pin Mr. Prescott has given me!"

"You are spoiling the child, Mr. Prescott," spoke Miss Ward, but with an indulgent smile.

Another Sutor.

HE did not reply, but his eyes met her own with a rapt, longing expression. She read its meaning—love—not only for the little one, but for herself as well. It seemed about to speak. The memory of what had followed an offer of marriage caused Prescott to control his deep emotion. Soon he left the house.

It was hard to be about daily in the company of the woman who had devotedly loved and refrained from urging her to reconsider her decision. It had been announced in a kindly way, so considerably, in fact, that Prescott half believed that but for circumstances Lydia might have favored his plan. An orphan herself, her life was wrapped up in little Flora, who, having lost both father and mother, was cherished by Lydia as a responsibility to whom she had devoted her life. This much she had told Prescott in answer to his offer of marriage.

"There was another sutor—Leslie Shaw. Prescott had never liked him. He was persistent in his attention to Lydia. He was a man about town, with unknown antecedents. Prescott had experienced relief and satisfaction when from others he had learned of the summary dismissal of his rival.

It seemed that Shaw had importuned Lydia to accept him as her husband. She had given him the same answer that Prescott had received. Her life was bound up in little Flora. The enraged Shaw had fiercely wished the little one was dead, had let loose his wicked temper in a way that shocked and disgusted Lydia. Then Shaw had sworn that he would yet win her as his wife, if it took him 10 years to accomplish his purpose, and had gone away in a temper of wrath.

Lydia never gave any token of that stormy interview, but Prescott was well satisfied that she had a contempt for Shaw. She feared him, too, Prescott believed, and while he was glad that a persistent rival was out of the way, he kept himself on the alert to guard against any attempt to annoy Lydia on the part of Shaw.

Flora is Kidnaped.

ONE evening the telephone bell in his room rang sharply. His name was spoken breathlessly, and he thrilled and tingled as he recognized the tones of the woman he loved.

"Is Mr. Prescott?" she asked in a tone that trembled.

"Yes, Miss Ward."

"Will you please come to the house at once—oh, at once, please!" and Prescott dashed from the room, tracing anxiety and urgency in the well-known summons that might mean something helpful for Lydia.

He found her distractedly pacing the floor when he arrived at her home. She was white to the lips and her eyes bore the traces of a poorly suppressed anguish.

"Flora!" she gasped. "She is gone!"

"Gone? You mean—?" began Prescott in alarm.

"Stolen, kidnaped, spirited away! She was alone in the garden for an hour playing with her dolls," narrated Lydia.

"When I went to call her in she had disappeared."

"But—kidnaped? Impossible!" cried Prescott. "She must have wandered away."

"I found this note on a garden seat," proceeded Lydia. "Read it."

The crumpled scrap was signed with one name—Shaw—and it ran: "You will hear from me shortly. Unless you agree to marry me you will never see little Flora again."

"The scoundrel!" cried Prescott. "I will set the police on his track at once."

"Not so!" implored Lydia. "You do not know this man Shaw. If any such an attempt is made, he will disappear, and Flora with him. Oh, try and find her!"

Alvin Prescott had a difficult task before him. Shaw was not to be found at any of his occasional haunts. No trace was discovered of the missing child. The grief of Lydia was pitiable. Prescott devoted all his time to the mission in hand, but it was of no avail.

Traced by the Bantam Pin.

IT was the fifth morning after the disappearance of Flora, that, walking alone, the street, he observed a squat-oriental figure speed across the thoroughfare to his side. It was Wang Po.

"I find you!" he cried in great joy. "The pin—the golden bantam. You lose!"

"No, I gave it to a child!"

"I have found her. You come—come, quick!"

With faint heart of hope Prescott accompanied the half-coherent but intensely excited Wang Po. He led him to the Chinese quarter of the city, and through a maze of narrow, crooked passages into what seemed to be a secret lodge room.

There, on a dais, surrounded by Chinese women, was Flora. She was supremely contented, for they had given her all kinds of quaint toys and seemed only bent on entertaining her. Wang Po told his story. The child had been brought to some avaricious friends of his to hide or ship to some other city as the order might come. He, Wang Po, had discovered the golden bantam pin. He had removed the child into the charge of more trusty friends. He had guessed much. It led to seeking out Prescott.

They never heard of Shaw again—"they," for what could come of it, but that the rescuer of the dear little one should prevail upon a sweet, loving Lydia to give her a protector for life? (Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

This Season a Woman May Wear What She Pleases

Jumble of Fashions This Fall Permits Lady to Don Whatever Style Fits Her Individuality Best.

THERE seems to be no audible objection to the jumble in fashions this fall and we wonder whether women have developed a sense of appreciation of their own individuality or whether perhaps the suffrage and anti-suffrage campaigners everywhere have exhausted their speech. At any rate all styles have been accepted with scarcely a reservation on any detail. That feeling of well being and cocksureness a woman used to have when she would show off a new costume with the remark, "Everyone is wearing it," seems to have become all the more as she walks out with the simple knowledge that there is not another one like it. The woman who is weary of her uncertainty about just what she wants in a season which offers little choice, now walks out with the confident feeling that she has something to suit her own individual type.

At least the latitude in fashions has ended further talk about uniform dressing, which subject we did hear a lot about last spring. Of course such a thing as a uniform costume would never have come about for there are too many artists in this country to decry such an insult to art. With lovely women to wear beautiful clothes why should she not? It has ever been the artist's pleasure and privilege to create for her.

ONE garment which has been ostracized from fashionable society for years is this season enjoying high favor and furnishing delightful variation of dressing. The afternoon coat of broadcloth or velvet preferably, is considered extremely smart for wear over frocks of silk, velvet, chiffon and combinations of these fabrics. The coat is usually trimmed with fur, as all outer garments are this winter, and made to fit very much on the style of the suit coat. This retains for it a chic appearance quite unlike the bulky effects our separate coats used to give.

Frocks to wear under the separate coat afford opportunity for as much variation, and more, as the blouses give that are worn with the suit.

Here is shown a design similar to make with distinction achieved in a detail of cut and trimming. At the left smoke gray satin is used for the main portion of the frock, with purple fall silk for minor parts and a collar of shiny muslin. The full sleeves are attractive complements of the tight bodice which might otherwise seem out of place with the full gathered skirt. However, the skirt offers an admirable bit of relief in the form of an upstanding ruffle across the front. At the same time it accentuates the daintiness of the skirt which affords use for a little of the purple silk at the top. A gray silk cord which confines the ruffle continues around the edge of the bodice to tie at the side back with tassels ends. At the opposite side front of the bodice a similar cord and tassel in smaller size forms a characterful decoration, and very effective in consideration of its connection with the collar, marking the crossing of it to one side.

with Meg in his arms, and in a few minutes the whole garrison was out. "Lieut. Moore's rifle put an end to the animal's misery."

So now in cool England Rama lives with his white friends, while Meg is growing up into a big girl. And on summer evenings when they sit down to talk over old times Meg perches on the tiger skin rug to listen to how Rama saved her when she was a bit of a baby in India. Air Concussion.

A WRITER in the Scientific American reports having observed an electric spark at the end of a whip when it gave out a particularly loud snap and suggests that the snap was not made by the lash at all, but that it was the result of the instant concussion of the air, the electric spark being produced by the friction of the currents of air, the same as in a thunderstorm.

How Rama Saved Meg

Sandman story about a tiger who tried to catch a little girl in India many years ago.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

SOME day, if you take a trip to England and visit at the home of Capt. Moore, you will see on the library floor the skin of a tiger, its mouth wide open, and the glass eyes shining in a very natural way. And the Captain will tell you the story of how they got this rug by the death of a tiger in India, in the days when he was a young Lieutenant in the British army.

The English officer and his wife lived with their small daughter, Meg, in quarters just outside the barracks. Rama was a little Indian orphan boy who had lived with the Moores and was Meg's devoted slave.

One morning the Lieutenant came in excitedly. "Runners have come in from the South," he said, "and report that there is a huge tiger ranging about in the swamps a few miles out of town. Not one of you must venture in that direction."

ABOUT noon Mrs. Moore called Rama and told him to take Meg in the little wagon over to the north side of the barracks and gather some wild flowers which grew along the bank of the stream. So Meg was tucked under the big, white umbrella and Rama, with his head protected by a turban and a white cloth around his waist, set out drawing the load, his brown skin shining in the hot Indian sun.

Presently Meg fell asleep on a rug he had spread on the ground, so the boy sat still listening to the water trickling over the stones. Then out of the hot midday silence of the jungle he heard a sound—a soft, pit-pit, pit-pit. Some creature was creeping up on them through the tangled bushes. He listened. The sound came from back in the undergrowth. He knew by the heavy tread what it was. Then through the leaves of the bushes he peered and caught sight of the great, cat-like animal crawling toward them—the tiger of India.

Closer and closer he crept. And Meg never stirred. The boy was paralyzed with fright. Then the baby raised her sunny head. Her hand touched a long vine which swung from the limb above. "Hush, baby," whispered Rama. "Baby keep still; Rama take home."

SEIZING the child in his left arm, he quickly tied her close to him by his turban cloth. Just as he finished, the tiger leaped. But as the animal sprang Rama also leaped and grabbed the vine far above his head. The tiger rolled over on the ground. Rama gave a push with his feet against the tree, and the vine swung him far out over the bank, then he swung back again to the tree, the tiger watching every move, ready to leap again. At

The Dialogue in Doemgood's Garage.

POP let himself in and hung his coat and hat on the rack. A pleasant odor of chicken tripple and boiled onions assailed his nostrils. He began to plan just how he was going to pour oodles of gravy over his mashed potatoes.

"I washed up down at the office," he called in, cheerily, to Ma. "You can't make me angry by serving dinner whenever it's ready—preferably now."

"You're good and glibbie all right," Ma broke in on him. "My goodness, I could have laughed out loud when I heard it. Why, only the other night you were blowing to Mr. Green how you stood in with the people over at the garage—how your car was always downstairs near the door—how other people had to take theirs up on elevators for the third and fourth floors and get stuck behind 20 others so it'd take 'em an hour to get out. Ha! That's good! Do you know WHY your car is always near the door, you poor simp? Not because they love your blessed little sunshiny nature—not because you over-grease their palms—but because they take your car out joy-riding every night. Some friends of Mr. Green's recognized it at the Greengrass Inn last night!"

Pop looked grim, threw on his coat, grabbed his hat, slammed the door—and was on his way. Ten minutes later this dialogue took place at the Doemgood Garage.

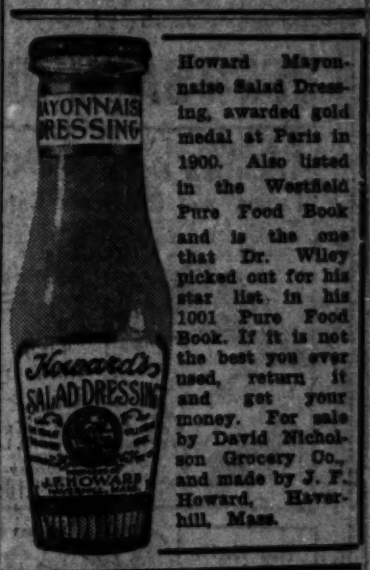

Pop (aggressively): Well, the jig's up, Smith. So you take my car out joy-riding, do you? Don't deny it. Some friends recognized it last night.

Smith (smiling): They're kidding you, Mr. Pop.

Pop (firing up): Is that so? Well, why is my car always downstairs near the door? Why are the wheels always either wet or dirty? Huh?

Smith (calmly): One at a time. It's always in front because it's no effort to lift the damned thing in one hand and throw it into a corner when another car wants to get out. When the wheels are dirty it's being left to the last to wash because the washer knows that it takes only one squirt of the hose to clean the dainty little thing. When they're wet, some fellow's hate up for a tip and spills a cup of water over 'em just before you come in so you'll loosen up. As for joy-riding, I don't take my recreation in cap-sules, Mr. Mitt. So, if you're anxious about your go-cart, take it somewhere and lock it up in a chicken coop! Pop (a half hour later to Ma): Of course, it isn't true. I knew it wasn't in the beginning. He felt terrible to think that I'd think such a thing at all!

MANN IS FOR ROOT FOR PRESIDENCY; ELIMINATES SELF

He Warns Republicans Against Overconfidence; Predicts Prosperity From Now Forward.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Congressman James R. Mann of Chicago, Republican leader in the National House of Representatives, has eliminated himself as a presidential candidate in favor of Elihu Root of New York.

Congressman Mann said today in referring to his speech before the Hamilton Club last night that the question of presidential candidacy had never seriously entered his mind, but that some of his friends had insisted he should be a candidate. "The bee never got into my bonnet," was the expression Mann used in his address. He warned the Republicans against overconfidence in 1914, predicting much prosperity in the nation from this time forward.

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

A PURE WHITE MINERAL OIL

Your Doctor Prescribes It

THE highest medical authorities everywhere now endorse pure mineral oil as a remedy for constipation.

Nujol conforms to the requirements of the mineral oil treatment as prescribed by its discoverer, Sir William Arbuthnot Lane. It gives permanent, not temporary, relief from constipation, with none of the harmful after-effects of laxative drugs.

Nujol is odorless and tasteless, absolutely neutral, and is not digested or absorbed into the system. It acts merely as a mechanical lubricant.

Nujol is not a drug. Its use will not give quick, temporary relief. But Nujol is a genuine remedy in that it relieves constipation in the most natural way by lubricating the lining of the intestines, softening the intestinal contents, and thus promoting healthy and normal bowel activity.

The Newark Shoe Maker Talks About A Flexible Dancing Shoe

WE call it the "Castleton." It's a thoroughly dancing shoe with a flexible sole that bends like a slipper. In point of style, it's a DOUBLE of the $3.50, $4 and $5 sort that you see elsewhere.

The thing that puzzles every man who examines the NEWARK "Castleton" dancing shoe is how such an expensive-looking, glove-like fitting, comfortable shoe can possibly be sold for $2.50.

SOUTH AMERICA LOOKS FOR A BIG TRADE AFTER WAR

Argentina Believes She Will Get Germany's Business Hereafter Enjoined by Europe.

SHE WILL CUT OUT RUSSIA

Merchants in Buenos Ayres Now Sending to United States for Goods.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The German Trade League for South America, recently organized in Berlin under the presidency of Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, formerly German colonial secretary and last winter spokesman for the German cause in the United States, is attracting much attention in South America as well as in this country. The aim of the new organization is to help German business interests make up in South American markets what they may lose in the markets of Europe and those of the colonies of European countries as a result of the war.

In Buenos Ayres, according to advice the information in certain quarters is that after the war Germany will want not only to sell more in Argentina, but also to buy more than she bought there before the war began.

It is said that raw materials and food products which Germans imported in the past from Russia they will prefer hereafter to import from Argentina. This phase of the matter is naturally interesting to Argentine producers.

On the other hand, the plans of the German manufacturers, backed undoubtedly by their Government, to start a livelier competition than ever for the South American markets, have a special significance for the representatives of British, French and United States manufacturing and selling concerns and for persons whose interests are involved with theirs. These plans throw light on the situation, which is likely to develop upon the conclusion of peace.

German firms in the Argentine, it appears, are resorting to extraordinary devices to maintain themselves. They have done fairly well thus far, thanks to the large stocks on hand at the beginning of the conflict, and to the reduced demand that followed.

Import from U. S.

Of late they have been replenishing their stocks from sources in the United States. Articles that formerly were "made in Germany" now lack that mark, and are obviously from this country. In some cases, it is said, the German merchants are paying more for the North American article and are standing a loss on them in order to meet the prices of the European competitors and to keep their customers.

The interest in the matter manifested in the United States is indicated by the fact that the Commerce Department has just issued a report on it, the report of the American Association of Commerce and Trade in Berlin. Parts of the speech that Dr. Dernburg made at the first meeting of the new organization are recalled.

"South America, as a foreign trade territory, is of special value to us," he is quoted as having said, "because we do not know our relations to our enemies will shape themselves after the war, and for this reason we must eventually look there for compensation.

No Fear of Competition.

"One advantage to Germany is her widespread and well-organized merchant marine and her methodical banking system. For this reason we need not fear foreign competition for many generations to come. But if the war should last a very long while, foreign trade will finally be obliged to seek other channels, and then a recapturing of lost territory will be rendered difficult.

"In addition, it should be remembered that our foreign trade in South America lacks the fortunate position which our opponents enjoy, because we lack the base in the form of extensive investments.

"Of importance is not only the strengthening of our economic influence, but also the gaining of a certain moral influence. No doubt Germany's energy and pluck are remarkable, but Latin and Anglo-Saxon people do not like to be made conscious of this fact, or to have it 'rubbed in.' The less presumption is asserted in making our influence felt the more friends we shall make. And if we do not change our attitude in this respect, our opponents will get the better of us in spite of our smartness.

Uncle Sam Busy.

The United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce has for the last year contributed to trade extension between this country and South America. A dozen special commercial agents have toured the Southern continent. Bankers have established branches in various South American cities. The statistics show large increases of inter-American commerce, due for the most part, of course, to the peculiar conditions of war time.

ROAD TO HEALTH IS THROUGH THE KIDNEYS

Backaches, Lumbago, Rheumatic Twinges and Other Painful Symptoms the Result of Clogged or Improperly Working Kidneys.

No person alive is stronger than his kidneys. The minute the kidneys become disarranged or clogged with waste the warning is flashed throughout the entire system. Hundreds of sufferers from pains in the back and sides, bladder and kindred disorders, lumbago, rheumatism, dizziness, puffy swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, nervousness, tired or worn-out or headache feeling, don't seem to realize that the greater part of all sickness today can be avoided by keeping the kidneys working properly. If you suffer from any of the many ailments that accompany weak, clogged-up or diseased kidneys you should not neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure a package of Solvax, the wonderful new kidney remedy which is very inexpensive yet acts quickly and surely on the seat of the trouble. You'll be surprised how entirely different you'll feel in a very short time.

It doesn't matter how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used. The very principle of Solvax is such that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without some beneficial results.

Solvax is pleasant to take, gives quick relief and has been so uniformly successful that Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., and other leading dealers in this vicinity will in future sell it under a positive guarantee of relief or refund the money. No other kidney remedy we believe ever had a large enough percentage of cures so that it could be sold in this manner. A guarantee like this speaks volumes for the merit of Solvax.

There is no time like the present to do a thing that ought to be done. If anyone has kidney trouble today is the best time to begin curing it. —ADV.

To Avoid Common Colds

Of all so-called slight ailments, none is more common, and few are more troublesome, than a common "cold." Some persons, however, do not "catch" cold under conditions where another certainly would, and this we have been accustomed to explain is due to lowered vitality and lowered resistance in some people, as compared to increased vitality and greater resisting power in others. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, if taken as directed, invariably gives the system power to throw off and resist coughs, colds, grip, bronchitis and lung troubles. It keeps the body in good general health because it is a predigested liquid food which requires little labor of the digestive organs. Duffy's adds to the power of maintaining health a great resistance to "catching" the cold breeding germs so prevalent at this season. That's why so many people who "get Duffy's and Keep Well" are seldom, if ever, troubled with coughs and colds. It's a medicine for all mankind which should be added to your family medicine chest today. See that it is—ADV.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCardell.

Mr. Jarr Loses, Finds and Loses
Five Dollars. Puzzle,
Who Wins?

MR. JARR searched his pockets in an abstracted manner. Whatever he was searching for had also been abstracted.
"Did you take anything out of my pockets last night or this morning?"
he asked.
"The ideal!" cried Mrs. Jarr. "Perhaps you'll be saying next that I drugged you with a poisoned needle or something of that sort and took your watch."
"My old ticker is all right, clucking away in its accustomed pouch," replied
Mr. Jarr calmly, "but I'm out."
"I don't wonder!" remarked Mrs.
Jarr, "the careless way you have of lying on the sofa or throwing your clothes around when you undress so that your keys and everything else fall out of your pocket. It keeps me busy picking up after you."

"Well, you needn't be so busy," said old Mr. Keep-His-Temper, "and if you picked up five fish of mine, please slip them back to me."
"You ought to be ashamed of yourself accusing me of taking money from you!"
whispered Mrs. Jarr. "I wouldn't mind it so much if this were the first time!"
"Nor I," said Mr. Jarr.
"But I tell you I didn't find it or I didn't take it!" Mrs. Jarr persisted.
"You are always saying you lose your money around the house. How would you like it if I were to accuse you of wasting it and then claiming you lost it and that I found it or took it?"
"I wasn't anywhere to waste it and I know I had it," he ventured finally.
"But it's gone and you say you didn't take it or find it, why, there's no use feeling badly about it. I work hard for my money and don't get much of my strenuous efforts, but 'easy come, easy go,' as the saying is," he added with beautiful inconsistency.
"Now that you are acting and speaking more sensibly, tell me where you had this money last?"

"I had it when I came home last evening," was the reply. "I put it in my fob pocket right here, as I was going to lie down on the sofa and was afraid it might slip from another pocket, right here!"
"Will you wager it was in that fob pocket when you lay on the sofa?"
asked Mrs. Jarr.
"I'll bet anything it was," he replied serenely.

"Will you bet $5?" asked Mrs. Jarr.
"Sure!" said Mr. Jarr. "So now give me $5."

"Not so fast," remarked Mrs. Jarr.
"Don't you remember I made you change the suit that had just been pressed when you came home last night and started to bunk down on the sofa to read the paper, as usual?"
Mr. Jarr remembered.
"Well," cried Mrs. Jarr triumphantly,
"you left the $5 in the fob pocket of the other suit. I found it there, but didn't touch it. Now you have lost it to me!"
"Oh, very well," said Mr. Jarr philosophically, "but you'll have to lend it to me for spending money this week."
"What's the use of people who haven't anything trying to get something from each other?" sighed Mrs. Jarr.

Don't Ever Let Anyone Tell
You This as a New One TEACHER: Why are you scratching your head, Willie Jones?
Willie Jones: 'Cause nobody else knows just where it itches.

Apt Title.

THIS collar stud is my own invention," said the Cheap Jack,
"and the name I have given it is
"Faut."
"Because everybody has fault?"
suggested the red-nosed man in the crowd.
"No, my dear sir; simply because it's so easy to find."

Forewarned.

LITTLE HAROLD was spending a few days at his aunt's house.
Just before they sat down to the dinner table he took his aunt aside and whispered: "My mamma don't allow me to ask for a second helping of dessert. I thought I'd let you know, so you wouldn't think I didn't like the kind of pie and things you make."

Enforced Sobriety.

MET your friend Lushie the other day. He said he was on the water wagon.
"That must have been on Thursday or Friday, wasn't it?"
"It was on Friday. How did you guess?"
"He's always on the wagon the last two days before pay day."

The Black One: Get up, Fatty!
I've got to get home.

'SMATTER POP?

Pop's Kid Inherited His Discretion From Pop!

My Friend Jones.

MY friend Jones likes to be considered a sport, but he hates to take any chances. He has never been known to make a bet unless he could get long odds.
One day I met him at a football game.
"Hello, Jonesy," said I. "Who's going to win the game?"
"Oh, I haven't been following the game," replied Jones, cautiously. "Who do you think will win?"
"Looks like an even thing to me. Suppose we have a little bet on it just to make things interesting."
Jones hesitated. "Which team do you want to bet on?" he asked.
"I haven't any choice," said I. "Tell you what I'll do, old man. I'll bet you $10 and let you choose the team you want to bet on. That's a fair proposition. Are you on?"
"It all depends," said Jones. "What odds will you give me?"

What He Would Do.

THE stupid person sometimes says a witty thing without knowing it. A professor in a medical college had one exasperating student.
"You see, Mr. Smith," said the professor to this young man one day, "the subject of this diagram limps, because one of his legs is a trifle shorter than the other. Now, what should you do in such a case?"
"I should limp, too, I think, sir," replied the student, with an expression of perfect innocence on his face.

Substitutes.

I WONDER if the ancient Romans ever played football?
"They knew better. Whenever they wanted any rough stuff pulled they made the gladiators and the Christian martyrs do it."

Famous Consolations

Yeah, but you'd oughta see the
OTHER feller!
Oh, well, it was only a CHEAP umbrella!
Anyway, Jones got stung, too!
But Gorry! It was some session while it lasted.
Huh! I should worry!
Never mind, Marie, our ship'll come in some day—see if it doesn't.
Thank Heaven my children are not as misbehaved as those kids next door.
Sure, dear, ask your mother to come visit us. She won't stay more'n a month at the most.
What! I sorry I live in the suburbs?
Ridiculous! Seats living in a flat in town, you betcher!
Children are SUCH a care, but if I didn't have the precious darlings around me I don't know what on earth I'd do.
There goes old Bill the bachelor.
Darned if I'd care to live like he does.
There goes old Tom. Been married six years. Has four kids. None of that for your Uncle Willie. Bachelor life's the life, eh boys?

The Limit.

FOR a camel to go through the eye of a needle is considered about the limit of impossibility, isn't it?
"Oh, I don't know. It's no more impossible than for a collar button to slip out of one's fingers and roll toward the middle of the floor."

Mildred says did you ever stop to

The trouble with most men who say they are overworked is that they are underenergized.

A Blow to Father.

"That's a stunning set of furs, Madge."
"Yes. Father was completely stunned when he got the bill for them."

C URIOUSITY-SEEKER: Love, why do they call you blind?
Love: Well, if you had been sitting around in the dark as long as I have, you'd be blind, too.—Michigan Gargoyle.

The best way to get rid of a friend

Reassuring Mother.

EDMUND had just begun to attend the public school, and had found a new friend, a child of whom Edmund's mother had never heard.
"Who is this, Walter?" she asked. "Is he a nice little boy?"
"Yes, ma'am, he is," replied Edmund, enthusiastically.
"Does he say any naughty words?"
pursued his mother.
"No," replied Edmund, with emphasis,
"and I'm not going to teach him any."

One Is Plenty.

MRS. PENHEQUE: Don't you dare to leave the house this evening, Henry.
Mr. Penheque: I fully intended to remain indoors, my dear.
"Huh! What for?"
"To study a problem that has been in my mind for some time."
"What problem?"
"For weeks I have been trying to figure out what on earth the Mormons can see in polygamy."—Youngstown, Telegram.

MISS CAUSTIQUE: You shouldn't smile so much, my dear. It is dangerous.
Miss Penheque: Dangerous?
Miss Caustique: Yes. When a smile lights up your face it might set off the powder.

No Longer Responsible.

THE dangers of travel by sea at this time have played havoc with the nerves of timid passengers.
Early one morning recently there was considerable commotion on the decks of a coastwise vessel plying between Savannah and Baltimore, when a scantily clad man hurried from his stateroom and dashed toward the upper deck. On the way he ran into the captain of the vessel.
"What's the matter, Captain?" he managed to gasp. "Have we been torpedoed?"
"Calm yourself, my dear sir, and be prepared for the worst," answered the official.
"Oh, don't tell me we're going down!"
moaned the other. "Quick, where are the life preservers?"
"They wouldn't be of any service at this stage," explained the Captain.
"Too late!" quavered the despairing passenger.
"Yes," said the Captain very solemnly. "We've done all we can for you, you'll have to look out for yourself from now on. You see, we've just tied up to the dock."

HE married her for a woman of means.
"And isn't she?"
"Oh, yes; but the meanest part of it is that she evidently means to keep her means to herself."—Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

Revenge at Last.

"Say, Mame, did you hear the news? Our teacher's going to get married to the principal."
"Oh, goody! It serves both of
'em right."

Positive Proof.

HOW do you know he loves you so much?
"I'm sure of it. He's so attentive to other girls when I'm present."

One on Dr. Wiley.

DR. HARVEY W. WILEY, food expert, tells of a trip he made to a place in Carolina to make a propagandist speech, says the National Food Magazine. It goes something like this:
"I checked my bag at the station and engaged an old negro hackman to drive me to the hall. He seemed very much worried over my lack of baggage."
"Most every gent what comes here's got something to sell," he said. "Maybe youse got something to sell, boss?"
"Oh, yes," I told him, "I sell wit and wisdom."
"The old negro scratched his head and cooed."
"Well, boss," he said finally, "you is de first man I ever toted what didn't carry no samples."

A Bright Lad.

THAT new office boy of yours looks very intelligent.
"You bet he is. He's been here only a week and he's already discovered a way to beat the time clock."

IF you really are connected with the Von Brevinblads, why haven't you a family tree?
"Well—ahem—to tell the truth, our family is only a branch."—Puck.
